Look out for the sleek tongued varments that tell you the Advance is not the best machine in the market Those that tell you falsehoods are not worthy of being called by any other name. The ADVANCE is guaranteed to do more and better work than any other machine in the market, and is the only machine on the Coast that has NEVER been replaced by other machines. Other dealers have offered new machines for an ADVANCE that has been run two years, and have given parties to understand they would give differences, but were told that the ADVANCE, after two years' run was still much better than old fogy machines if they were new And if the ADVANCE engine is not the best traction engine, why is it that I have sold TWELVE on the West Side, between Portland and Corvallis, this year?

Kilrain Gives Up the Battle After Seventy-Five Rounds.

HE FOUGHT A DODGING FIGHT

Going Down to Avoid Punishment, and Striking Foul.

HE WEPT LIKE A LITTLE CHILD

Sullivan's Stomach Went Back on Him at One Time, But He Refused to Make the Fight a Draw—A Full Report.

NEW ORLEANS July 8—After worrying around half the night at New Orleans and speculating on the chances for the fight the people at the hotels, clubs and on the streets moved, by a common impulse toward the depot.

Down at the depot at 11 30 there was an indescribable crush It seemed as though everybody in the city was going to the fight. Everybody wanted to get aboard at the same time Clothes were torn, hats crushed nervous people shocked but the crowd finally got through and the trains were quickly filled In the throng were many of the most prominent people in the city

During the crush pickpockets tried to get in their work and one sporting man from the North was relieved of his watch and chain

The greatest difficulty was experienced by the management in keeping the people without tickets off the train, and a force of detectives was provided in each car Some venturesome people who had no money risked their lives on the roofs of the cars

Just before the train was finally made up Attorney General Rogers came aboard with Adjutan General Faries and Colonel Clem Walker of the governor's staff, and stated that the fight must positively not take place on Louisiana soil At first no answer was made but the officials were finally told that the men would not fight in this state It was expected that troops would appear at the depot, but of the two companies in the city one could muster but forty men and the other only about a baker's dozen

In reply to the governor's call for train accommodations for troops, the railroad people replied that they could not be accommodated since all the rolling stock had been chartered The governor was however offered transportation with his men on the regular train

At 11 30 the first train of twelve coaches pulled out of New Orleans and the conductor and engineer were given instructions to go straight through to the battle ground without a stop Aboard the train information was furnished officially that both Sullivan and Kilrain had reached the battle ground at [illegible]

There was scarcely any betting on the train The passengers simply talked over the merits of the two men and slept

On the train were the chief of police of New Orleans the commissioner of public buildings, and in fact, most of the prominent officials. The city attorney and adjutant general and staff left at Slidell and stood at the station until morning, waiting for the returning train

The fight took place at Richburg ninety two miles from Meridian, and 103 miles from New Orleans

Richburg is virtually owned by Mr [illegible], and the place covers an area of 10 000 acres, extending over three counties in Mississippi The battle ground was on sawdust and seated 1600 people.

At the Mississippi line there was a party of twenty five armed men and the train was flagged, but no attention was paid to the signal and the special dashed by at a speed of twenty five miles per hour

Just before daybreak and just before the train got into Mississippi the ring was pitched, and everything put in readiness for the fight

The first special train reached Richburg at 7 40

The ring was built about an eighth of a mile from the railroad track. It is a pretty spot with tall pines all around, level and covered with green turf The ring was made of heavy ropes run through stakes deeply driven in the ground, and there were seats on four sides of the ring The weather was sultry

AT THE RINGSIDE.

The Preliminary Arrangements—Appearance of the Men—Etc

There was great excitement at the ringside as Bud Renaud Mike Donovan and John Murphy made their appearance at 9 50 and it became apparent that the fight was actually to occur On the toss up for position Kilrain's representative Mike Donovan won, and selected the northeast corner Muldoon Sullivan's representative chose the southwest corner

At this juncture the sheriff of the county made an appearance and in the name of the state of Mississippi commanded the peace and retired This being the only effort on the part of the authorities to interfere with the fight

The flag Sullivan brought from Boston was placed in his corner amidst great enthusiasm at about 10 o'clock The sun having gone behind a cloud there was no perceptible advantage in either corner

Kilrain was first to make his appearance, accompanied by Mike Donovan and Charlie Mitchell He was greeted with applause but wore a very serious air, as if fully realizing the work before him

As the crowd recognized the stalwart form of the "big fellow" as he jumped into the ring the cheers were deafening He looked in marked contrast to Kilrain, seeming to be perfectly at his ease regarding the termination of the contest

The name of Pat Kenrick of New Orleans was offered by the Kilrain side as referee but he was not acceptable to the other side, the representative of Sullivan proposing the name of John Fitzpatrick of New Orleans saying I want the fight to day to take place on its merits and may the best man win I have only one name to present for the position of referee and that one is known throughout the state as an upright [illegible] and honest man I name John Fitzpatrick of New Orleans [Great applause]

Charles Mitchell—I don't know the gentleman just named but I think if the other side want to fight the one we have named ought to satisfy them

Charles Johnson would not agree saying if the Kilrain party would not take John Fitzpatrick they did not want to fight

At this juncture Mitchell proposed that they toss up to see which of the above named gentleman would act as referee, but this did not seem to be the wish of the Sullivan side, though the crowd favored the idea

Then Professor Butler proposed the name of a New York man who however did not prove acceptable to the other side and after considerable wrangling over the matter, Charley Mitchell finally said they were willing to accept Mr Fitzpatrick and this announcement was received with cheers

Mitchell here went over and examined the spikes in Sullivan's shoes Cleary did the same to Kilrain

Fitzpatrick—I am not very conversant with the rules This will be a fair contest of the merits of the two men and I will do all I can In regard to the question as to what time the thirty seconds between rounds shall commence, I decide from the time the man falls

Harding at this moment stepped up to Kilrain and placing $1000 in his hands [illegible] sent by Mr Fox for him to bet [illegible] Kilrain at once went over to Sullivan [illegible] bet him that sum that he would [illegible] The bet was [illegible] and the money ($1000 [illegible] referee

Both being stripped [illegible]

Sullivan's seconds were William Muldoon and Mike Cleary [illegible] Murphy of Boston bottle holder

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

A [illegible] History of the [illegible]

At 10 10 the [illegible] the centre of the ring [illegible] a Maltese cross [illegible] ropes and the [illegible] to their respective corners

At the call of time Kilrain and Sullivan advanced to the centre of the ring the latter wearing a confident smile, Kilrain looking serious, and the great battle for the world's championship begun

First round—Kilrain immediately made a rush for Sullivan, the latter feinting with his left, and doubly clinched Kilrain and threw him heavily to the turf securing first honors and loud applause

Second round—Both men advanced promptly at the call of time, Sullivan immediately leading with his left catching Kilrain heavily on the ribs The men then clinched and Sullivan secured a second fall amid loud cheers from his partisans

Third round—Kilrain rushed at Sullivan at once clinching and catching the big fellow around the neck, but the latter immediately broke away and got in a short arm blow on the neck In this round Kilrain struck at least half a dozen apparently foul blows below the belt, which the referee from his position could not see, but which were greeted with hisses by the crowd it appearing and being so proclaimed by Sullivan's friends that Kilrain wanted to lose on a foul The round closed by Kilrain going down from a light blow on the neck

Fourth round—Both men sparred cautiously for an opening Kilrain after one or two feints on the part of Sullivan, rushed in and Sullivan, securing a cross buttock hold tried to throw the Baltimore boy, but he broke away and landed a stinger on Sullivan's jaw Both men then sparred cautiously Kilrain succeeding in getting a light blow on Sullivan's neck.

Round four which was in favor of Kilrain ended by the latter falling to avoid punishment

Fifth round—Sullivan opened with a feint with his left, upon which Kilrain immediately retreated Sullivan followed him up and Kilrain made a vicious lunge at his head which however, fell short and Sullivan swung his terrible right at his opponent's jugular he too falling short and Kilrain going down near his own corner his aim appearing to be to avoid punishment

Sixth round—Sullivan commenced operations by landing heavily with his left on Kilrain's jaw They then clinched and fell heavily Sullivan on top Kilrain was carried to his corner, while Sullivan walked to his unassisted.

Seventh round—Both men sparred cautiously for an opening but soon clinched and indulged in some sharp short arm work, Kilrain getting in three or four good ones on Sullivan's ribs and a right hander on Sullivan's right ear drawing blood Claimed and allowed for Kilrain

Eighth round—Sullivan came up bleeding from the cut on his ear having the appearance of an enraged bull He immediately rushed at Kilrain and after a few passes succeeded in breaking down his guard and sending Kilrain to grass with a heavy right hander in the mouth First knock down claimed and allowed for Sullivan, amid prolonged cheers from his admirers.

Ninth round—Was very brief Kilrain nimbly slipped down to escape punishment

Tenth round—Kilrain came up looking very serious As he showed no disposition to come to the center of the ring Sullivan impatiently exclaimed Stand up and fight like a man I'm not a sprinter I'm a fighter As soon as Kilrain came near him Sullivan made a pass but it fell short, and Kilrain countered on his stomach Sullivan made a rush at Kilrain when the latter turned and hugged him both being against the ropes The big fellow here got in some light blows on Kilrain's ribs, which at this time resembled the color of raw beef steak They clinched Kilrain throwing Sullivan and falling heavily on top of him

Eleventh round—Sullivan opened with his left, which Kilrain countered Sullivan landing a light one on Kilrain's neck, following it with a vicious blow which Kilrain ducked the latter rushing and hugging Sullivan The boy from Boston was now blowing quite hard, and Kilrain got in an ugly undercut on Sullivan's ribs Sullivan in return got in a good one on Kilrain's neck which staggered him and many in the crowd called upon Sullivan to go in and finish him The big fellow then planted a heavy one on Kilrain's neck the latter retreating, Sullivan following him up and endeavoring to land one of his terrible knock out blows and succeeded finally in gaining a square knock down by a right hander in the neck. At the termination of this round Sullivan did not even take his seat, while Kilrain appeared to be very much distressed

Round twelve—Kilrain started this round by hugging Sullivan the latter breaking away and getting in a good left hander on Kilrain's neck Kilrain proved a tricky fighter evading successfully Sullivan's right handed swings for a knock out spot, clinching Sullivan and attempting to throw him, but without success, and upon breaking away made a pass at Sullivan, but his blow lacked force. The round ended by the men falling heavily Sullivan on top, his left arm locked tightly on his opponent's throat. Kilrain had to be carried to his corner

Thirteenth round—Sullivan landed on Kilrain's ribs the latter playing for his stomach and striking foul blows repeatedly John returned on the jaw and ribs Kilrain slipping down to avoid punishment In this round he badly spiked Sullivan's left foot

Fourteenth round—Kilrain again started around the ring the round ending with a clinch in which Sullivan slipped going down under the ropes.

Fifteenth round—Kilrain resorted to his sprinting tactics Sullivan exclaiming Come and fight Kilrain made a pass at Sullivan's stomach Sullivan avoiding it and planting a counter on Kilrain's ribs Sullivan made another vicious lunge which Kilrain dodged and he in turn rushed Sullivan against the ropes but effected no harm [illegible] Sullivan backed Kilrain into the latter's corner aiming a vicious blow at Kilrain which the latter cleverly avoided, running away from his antagonist. Sullivan again appealed to the referee to induce Kilrain to face the music saying to Mitchell's protege, "Why can't you fight like a man?" Kilrain rushed at Sullivan, the latter countering right and left landing on Kilrain's ribs and jaw Sullivan tried to land a hard one, which Kilrain evaded by rushing in and clinching Sullivan planting short arm blows on his neck and ribs Both men indulged in short-arm blows Sullivan playing for the neck and Kilrain falling to avoid punishment.

Sixteenth round—Kilrain led planted a reminder on Sullivan's ribs and retreated Sullivan remarking You fight just like Mitchell Both sparred cautiously, Kilrain leading and landing on Sullivan's stomach Some lively in fighting followed Kilrain breaking away and promenading around the ring, but within Sullivan's reach A clinch followed Sullivan throwing Kilrain

Seventeenth round—Sullivan feinted and Kilrain dodged clear across the ring They again clinched, both falling Kilrain landing on Sullivan's cheek before the fall drawing the purple

Nineteenth round—Kilrain rushed and hugged Sullivan the latter saying You're no fighter you are a wrestler Kilrain planted his right on Sullivan's ribs and then retreated around the ring Sullivan following and planting a blow on Kilrain's ribs which could be heard all over the enclosure Kilrain landed lightly on Sullivan's ribs and then went down from a light blow

Twentieth round—Both men sparred for an opening Sullivan leading and landing again on his objective point, Kilrain's ribs the latter slipping down to avoid punishment Another claim of foul was made by Muldoon which was not allowed

Twenty first round—Kilrain landed on Sullivan's stomach Sullivan retreating on the neck at [illegible] Kilrain again resorted to hugging Sullivan landing on Kilrain's jaw and the latter falling

Twenty second round Sullivan landed on Kilrain's ribs the latter going to the earth

Twenty third round—Sullivan again landed heavily on the ribs, and then they clinched and fell Sullivan with his knee across Kilrain's [illegible] A strong claim of foul was made by Kilrain's seconds but was not allowed

[illegible] round—Sullivan began by trying [illegible] knock out Kilrain hugged and finally [illegible]

[illegible] round—Sullivan landed on Kilrain's ribs and repeated the dose again, when Kilrain fell as usual.

Twenty sixth round—Sullivan feinted, Kilrain [illegible] in retreating followed by Boston's pride. Kilrain landed on Sullivan's stomach with his right, and rushed in and threw his burly antagonist again amid loud and prolonged cheers.

Twenty seventh round—Both sparring for wind, Kilrain landing on Sullivan's jaw and clinching. Sullivan knocked Kilrain down in the latter's corner

Twenty eighth round—Kilrain led clinched and broke and then landed lightly on Sullivan's neck Sullivan feinted and a clinch ensued in Kilrain's corner, the latter planting lightly on Sullivan's ribs [illegible] was evaded by Kilrain and then Sullivan landed heavily on Kilrain's ribs

[illegible] round [illegible] led on Sullivan's [illegible] then landed lightly [illegible] going down

Thirtieth round [illegible] an ugly blow [illegible] to save himself

[illegible] landed lightly on Kilrain [illegible] heavily on [illegible] knocking [illegible]

[illegible] then [illegible] the referee to make Kilrain [illegible]

[illegible] went [illegible]

[illegible] Kilrain landed on Sullivan's [illegible] latter forced him all over the ring and finally knocked Kilrain down in [illegible] landing quickly on the [illegible]

[illegible] round—Kilrain landed on Sullivan's [illegible] by a right [illegible] with sharp [illegible] Sullivan [illegible] Kilrain and falling heavily on him

Thirty sixth round—Kilrain [illegible] hasty retreat around the ring causing Sullivan to [illegible] "Why don't you fight like a man" [illegible]

Thirty seventh round Kilrain [illegible] folding his arms while [illegible] come to the scratch [illegible] Kilrain The latter [illegible] breast and [illegible] the middle of the ring [illegible] and clinched Kilrain played on Sullivan's ribs and then went down Sullivan again appealing to the referee to make Kilrain fight Muldoon claimed a foul which was not allowed

Thirty eighth round—Kilrain showed signs of distress while retreating around the ring but Sullivan declined to follow The referee here told Kilrain that he would have to fight. He came up and landed lightly on Sullivan's jaw and breast then made a pass at Sullivan's stomach and clinched, the crowd hissing Kilrain for not toeing the mark. Kilrain went down to save his bacon

Thirty ninth round—Sullivan followed Kilrain around the ring calling to the referee to make him stand and fight Kilrain went down without being struck, and Sullivan claimed a foul, which was not allowed

Fortieth round—Sullivan landed heavily on Kilrain's ribs the latter ending the round by falling

Forty first round—Slight exchanges and Kilrain fell to avoid punishment

Forty second round—Sullivan opened heavily, hard in fighting following and Kilrain going down with a slight blow Sullivan stumbling over him and Sullivan's second made loud claims of a foul, which was not allowed

Forty third round—Sullivan landed on Kilrain's ribs, and after a few passes Kilrain went down without a decent blow Sullivan himself appealing to the referee and claiming a foul.

Forty-fourth round—As soon as he reached the center of the ring, Sullivan began vomiting freely and looked as if his stomach was weakening Kilrain asked him to make the fight a draw, but Sullivan refused and responded with a heavy blow on Kilrain's ribs knocking him down

Forty fifth round—Kilrain landed heavily on Sullivan's neck with his left and retreated. Sullivan smashed him in the ribs when he went down and while down Sullivan deliberately jumped on him with his feet. Cries of "foul" were heard all over the ring but it was not allowed This was a shameful act on Sullivan's part and should have lost him the battle

Forty sixth round—The men clinched and stayed together for some time Sullivan landed heavily on the ribs and nose and after some in-fighting Kilrain went down to avoid punishment.

Forty seventh round—Kilrain landed heavily on Sullivan's stomach. They clinched and fell heavily with Sullivan on top. Kilrain's seconds made loud and vigorous claims of foul, but the referee would not grant it Pony Moore said to the referee "You've got money on Sullivan" to which Fitzpatrick replied, "You're a damned liar"

Forty eighth and forty ninth rounds—Kilrain fell to avoid punishment.

Fiftieth round—Sullivan led viciously Kilrain returning lightly and running away Sullivan following and begging Kilrain to fight The latter went down from a slight blow The seconds of Kilrain knew that their man must lose unless a chance blow could save him Sullivan although slightly winded was able to sledge on more blows and Kilrain gradually becoming weaker, his blows had no strength in them and his left side was evidently giving him considerable pain. He pursued his usual tactics of retreating whenever Sullivan advanced, and the jeers of the crowd against the alleged champion of the world became more and more marked. Kilrain would smile but there was a listlessness in his assumed good humor that was painful to witness, his strength surely going, and none knew it better than himself

Fifty first to fifty sixth rounds—Kilrain resorted to his retreating tactics, to the disgust of the crowd, going down repeatedly without a blow

In the sixtieth round Kilrain went down without receiving a blow and loud cries of foul were heard on every side but were disallowed

In the sixty fifth round Johnson offered to bet $500 to $50 that Sullivan would win but could not find a taker

In the sixty sixth round Kilrain led viciously with his right, but missed Sullivan feinted and led landing slightly Kilrain going down

Sixty seventh round—Kilrain retreating Sullivan followed and knocked him under the ropes with a left hander in the ribs.

Sixty eighth round—Sullivan ended the round by knocking Kilrain down with several upper and undercuts

Sixty ninth round—Kilrain was knocked down with a severe right hander in the jaw

Seventieth round—Kilrain was very weak, Sullivan landing repeatedly Kilrain tried to throw Sullivan by catching him by the legs and then slipped and fell

Seventy first round—Kilrain, growing weaker, feinted and ran away Sullivan finally knocking him down with a fierce blow in the ribs

Seventy second round—Sullivan forced the fighting leading and landing slightly several times Kilrain again going down unhurt.

Seventy third round—Kilrain retreated all around the ring The round ended with Kilrain going down to avoid punishment.

Seventy fourth round—Kilrain led landing slightly on Sullivan The latter finally went down with a slight blow

Seventy fifth round—Kilrain went down with a slight blow in the jaw and was cautioned by the referee

When the time was called for the seventy sixth round Mitchell ran over to Sullivan's corner and asked if he would give Kilrain a present provided they would throw up the sponge Sullivan generously answered "Of course I will" but Mike Donovan seeing the condition of his principal, and to save him further punishment, threw up the sponge, and Sullivan had again proved his title as champion of the world.

HE WEPT LIKE A CHILD

And Continued Exclaiming, "I Had Him Beaten"

Kilrain was being scratched when Donovan his second threw up the sponge, thus declaring Sullivan the victor Kilrain was by no means satisfied but notwithstanding his protestations he was bundled up in a black shawl and hurried to a carriage in waiting Kilrain Donovan Butler Murphy and Mitchell drove rapidly to the train and entered their car Sullivan Muldoon and Cleary entered the first coach.

When Kilrain had seated himself he was soon surrounded by a host of sympathizing friends, who consoled him for his misfortune Kilrain wept like a child and continued exclaiming, I had him beaten

A large crowd had followed the hacks and remained standing around the coaches in which Sullivan and Kilrain were. Mr Stevenson who had been Kilrain's friend throughout remained by his side and sponged him occasionally giving him a drink of whisky and water Kilrain would not be consoled but continued to bemoan the loss of the battle, which he had hoped to win

Professor Michael J Donovan of the New York Athletic Club, who so ably seconded Kilrain, Professor Dennis Butler of the Southern Athletic Club and Johnnie Murphy, bottle holder, remained beside their principal, one relieving the other in ministering to his comfort and relief None felt the defeat of Kilrain more than these people and Prof Donovan stated that though Kilrain did not want to throw up the sponge he concluded to do so for his principal was exhausted from the heat and exercise, as well as from the punishment he had received but [illegible] stood the great punishment he had received at the hands of his big antagonist. He had a cut under the nose, across both lips, and his left eye was slightly discolored and swollen. His right hand had been injured by a blow on Sullivan's head, and his left instep had been cut by the spikes on Sullivan's shoes, which cut through the leather of Kilrain's left shoe. He had received terrible punishment about the ribs, and doubtless suffered considerable pain, but he gave no voice to his agony if any he endured. He claimed to have been more overcome by heat than by the blows of Sullivan.

Referring to the fight Kilrain said that he had not been trained properly, and that he was not in condition when he entered the ring. This seemed to be the impression of every one who saw him when he entered. He would work and get some money together again, he said, and would once more make a trial for the championship. He had Sullivan "done" twice, he continued, but he had not been properly trained, and was unable to take advantage of this, but he was willing to fight Sullivan again. He punched Sullivan several times, and did not seem to hit him, and he labored under the impression that something must have been done to him; in other words, that he had been drugged. He did not have the strength of a cat, but could stand any amount of punishment, but could not inflict any, and he could see that his blows were not hurting Sullivan.

He complained of the manner in which Sullivan had deliberately jumped upon him with both feet while he was down, but he should not find fault with this, but he had trusted too much to his friends.

One of those around him exclaimed reproachfully, "Some of your friends, you should say." "Sullivan was done for twice," he said, but he was also, and could not take advantage of his adversary's condition.

Kilrain lay down on the seat with his feet stretched across to the opposite seat and coats being placed over him he fell asleep.

When the train was crossing the trestle about eighteen miles from the city Mitchell for the first time entered the car and Kilrain awoke.

At the station, about a mile beyond Gentilly, while the train was at a standstill, Kilrain reproached Mitchell for the condition he was in when he entered the ring. Mitchell replied, and quite a crowd gathered around the two men in the coach. Mitchell attributed Kilrain's defeat to "it being one of his off days."

A number of sporting men who knew Kilrain well and had seen him in training at Baltimore remarked that something must have been the matter with him, for they had never seen him look so feebly as he did to-day.

Johnnie Murphy said that it was not Sullivan who knocked Kilrain out, but the sun, for Sullivan did not hurt him much. Kilrain's condition, he thought, was mysterious, and he was over trained, besides.

Professor Butler declared that he had announced his belief in Kilrain, and he had stuck to him through thick and thin. Mitchell had dropped him like a dog when the fight went against him, and this could not be charged against his other friends.

When the train reached the station at the head of Press street, two carriages were procured for the Kilrain party, and Kilrain, Stevenson, Donovan, Murphy, Butler, Mitchell and Pony Moore were driven up town. Kilrain was conducted to a Russian bath, and after being subjected thereto he repaired to his quarters at the Southern Athletic Club and retired to rest.

NOTES OF THE FIGHT

The Press Gang Indignant—Baltimore Shrouded in Gloom

NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—Owing to the brutal discourtesy to everybody, including newspaper men and the Western Union Telegraph Company, the managers of the fight will get a sound roasting. Newspapers here and the Associated Press have been compelled to buy tickets for half of their necessary working force. The New York managers gave notice that owing to the senseless action of the managers of the fight, he had decided not to give any special facilities for telegraphing from the scene of the fight, with the result that the report of the fight had to be filed in this city instead of at the ring side.

AT SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—The interest displayed in this city over the result of the New Orleans fight was almost unprecedented. Great crowds surrounded the newspaper bulletin boards and had the benefit of all kinds of conflicting telegrams. To add to the confusion, two afternoon papers not having regular press reports brought out extras as late as 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon announcing that Kilrain had won, and even money was wagered in the pool rooms up to 5 o'clock. In the meantime a definite announcement had been made in the 2 o'clock edition of a paper receiving the regular press report that Sullivan had won, while the regular edition at 5 o'clock contained the full Associated Press summary of the fight, which caused the betting to cease. The money lost on the result was very large.

BALTIMORE SHROUDED IN GLOOM

BALTIMORE, July 8.—No sporting event has ever excited interest in Baltimore equal to that which centered in the Sullivan-Kilrain fight to-day. So universal was the anxiety to hear the result of the contest that many did little else during the day than to enquire about the latest news. Fully 1000 persons collected about the newspaper bulletin boards this morning, eagerly awaiting news from the ring. The sentiment of the crowd was favorable to the Baltimore pugilist, and a deep gloom pervades the faces of most of those in the throng after the posting of a rumor that the big fellow had actually won the fight. Bookmakers say that although Sullivan was the favorite in this city many dollars were placed on Kilrain.

HOPING AGAINST HOPE

BALTIMORE, July 8.—Mrs. Kilrain this evening said: "My husband promised to send me a dispatch as soon as he could after the fight was finished. I think he could get a message to the telegraph station as soon as any newspaper, and as I have nothing from him I don't believe the news dispatches. I think that my husband will win the battle, and I will believe nothing else until I hear from him."

Afterwards a dispatch from New Orleans was handed her. It said: "Nature gave out. I am not hurt. Jake." And to Mrs. Mitchell, who is visiting the Kilrain's: "We are beat. Charlie."

AT CROW CREEK.

White Ghost Makes an Argumentative Speech Against the Bill

CROW CREEK AGENCY, July 8.—The council this afternoon was largely attended. White Ghost, the hereditary head chief, was the only speaker, and made by all odds the most argumentative speech thus far heard by the commission. He alluded with some bitterness to the presence of the white men on their reservation, referring to that portion opened by President Arthur, and suggested that they be removed from their land before the Indians were asked to sell what was left. He complained that the Santees were equal beneficiaries with the other Indians and that they were entitled to nothing besides being the Indians responsible for the troubles which followed the massacre in 1862 in Minnesota. He said that he had followed the advice given him by the Great Father, and that there were young men in his tribe who could read and understand English and he desired more time for them to fully explain its provisions and until they understood it the Indians could not decide on what action to take.

The objection urged by the Indians that they have no ground to spare and that their new reservation is too small to give them all suitable allotments of farm lands is reasonable, and it will unquestionably be very difficult to convince them that their interests demand the acceptance of the bill.

THE "ARTHUR RICHMOND" LETTERS.

They Are Said to Have Been Written by Julian Hawthorne and Gail Hamilton

NEW YORK, July 8.—The Commercial Advertiser says: Within the past decade there has been no event in the American world of letters which has provoked such wide comment and excited so large a measure of curiosity as the publication in the North American Review of the series of letters to prominent persons under the nom de plume of "Arthur Richmond."

The two distinctive characteristics of these letters were the extreme bitterness of personal and partisan feeling which they betrayed and the marked excellence and the vigor of their literary form.

Shortly after the recent death of Allen Thorndyke Rice, an attempt was made to establish the fact that he was not only responsible for their publication but had written the "Arthur Richmond" letters.

After Rice's death his friends thought the real authors should come forward but they have not done so and yet the veil of mystery has been lifted. We have it on unimpeachable authority that this series of letters was written by Julian Hawthorne and Gail Hamilton.

BRAGG AND THE G. A. R.

The General's Name Dropped From the Rolls of the Fond du Lac Post.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., July 8.—General Bragg, ex-minister to Mexico, has been dropped from the roll of the Grand Army of the Republic. The meeting Saturday night was a very stormy one, and when a vote was taken, it was three to one against Bragg.

The trouble over the matter was occasioned by those who did not like General Bragg's course on the pension bill. A previous attempt to court-martial the general, at that time, was beaten. Since that time Bragg went to Mexico as minister, and the fight was renewed on his return. The general wanted to pay his dues which had accumulated, and he was met with the objection that he was never legally a member of the post, although he was its first member.

CONSIDERS HIMSELF A MEMBER

MILWAUKEE, July 8.—General Bragg, when asked about the trouble in his post, said: "I consider myself a member of the Grand Army and intend to look into the matter when I reach home."

JOHN RANDOLPH TUCKER.

He Has Been Disappointed in Politics and Will Retire

WASHINGTON, July 8.—When John Randolph Tucker left congress two years ago, he greatly deserved an appointment upon the Supreme bench of the United States. President Cleveland could not give him this and he now announces his permanent retirement from politics.

He has accepted the professorship of Constitutional International and Commercial law at the Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Virginia. Tucker held this position many years ago before he went into congress.

ON THE BATTLE FIELD

Scenes and Incidents Connected With the Great Fight.

THE JOURNEY FROM NEW ORLEANS

How the Crowd Took Possession of the Grounds,

AND WAITED FOR THE FIGHT

The Appearance of the Principals in the Ring—Kilrain Looked Like a Whipped Man From the Start

NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—The big fight is over. Kilrain has been fairly, squarely, honestly and honorably whipped in a contest in which the beaten man has no cause to be ashamed of his defeat. There is no manner of doubt that Jake Kilrain is a game man and a good fighter, and the men who saw him fight to-day will put up their money on him the next time he enters the ring against any living man except Sullivan.

No account of this much talked of contest will be complete unless the thread of the narrative is taken up at the time of the departure of the first train from New Orleans Monday morning at 1:30 o'clock. The rush for admission to the $15 coaches was something indescribable. A thousand men surrounded the depot for hours before the announced time of departure, and madly jostled each other for favorable positions. When the doors were fairly opened the crush was frightful, and 200-pound men were lifted off their feet and suspended in air by the mere force of the forward and backward pressure. It took nearly two hours to seat the $15 ticket holders. Some had to occupy campstools in the aisles.

Just before the $15 train started from New Orleans it was discovered that scores of men and boys had concealed themselves on the cross beams connecting the wheels, while others hung on to the long iron rods connecting the trucks. The greater number, however, were perched on the roofs of the cars, in some cases as many as twenty-five on a coach. The interlopers were discovered and driven off by the police before starting, but once the train was in motion swarmed back like so many flies and remained to the end of the journey. Ninety per cent of these foolhardy actors were beardless boys ranging from 13 to 19. The most reckless deed of all was that of three young rascals who concealed themselves on the inner side of the cow catcher and were never dislodged.

ON THE FIELD

How the Crowd Took Possession of the Seats

The ring was pitched at Richburg in a clearing on the edge of a pine forest, near the little village. The ring was pitched on a patch of green turf and surrounding it on three sides were tiers of seats ten feet high put up by an enterprising local speculator who charged $2 for the privilege of a seat. Unfortunately, however, he occupied the space set aside for the inner ring seat holders, and those who had paid $15 for accommodation there claimed the right to sit in the improvised amphitheater without extra charge. The local man who had taken the risk of erecting and charging $2 for the occupancy of the seats, appealed to the crowd to pay him and made the point that the gentlemen who were occupying them were in honor bound to accept his terms. The crowd jeered at the suggestion.

The alleged reporters' stand was composed of three rows of seats on a level with the ring and provided with a high wooden board in front of them to be used as rests for writing pads. There was room for twenty in each row but the occupants of the second row could see nothing, their view being obstructed by those who sat on the same level in the first row.

Outside of the ring, villagers sat on wood and wagons filled with lumber, while others enjoyed the sight from rudely constructed platforms six or seven feet high. The small boys, as usual, had the best view from elevated perches in surrounding pine trees.

An enterprising photographer had three cameras in position on ladders and took views of the crowd and surroundings.

It was eight o'clock when the first train reached Richburg, but even at that early hour three upper tiers of seats were found occupied by Richburgers who had sat on their elevated perches since day light waiting for the fight to begin.

The assembled multitudes sat under the broiling blaze of the hot sun. Those who had umbrellas were allowed to open them, but the intimation was plain and general that when the fight began the umbrellas would have to go. After paying $15, and after coming hundreds of miles to see the fight, the crowd was in no temper to tolerate any obstructions to the view.

The general aspect of the crowd was anything but tough. The hoodlum element was largely outnumbered by an eminently respectable crowd. Professional men, merchants and bankers—some from New Orleans, others from neighboring states—were present to a preponderating degree, many of the spectators came from points as far distant as San Francisco in the West and New York and Boston in the East, but these were mostly of the sporting variety—bookmakers, gamblers and professional pugilists.

THE SECOND TRAIN.

It Did Not Reach the Ring Until Late in the Morning

While the holders of gilt-edge tickets at $15 each were disembarking and scrambling for places of vantage at the ring side, the $10 people on the second train were having experiences between New Orleans and the battle-ground.

At 2:40 o'clock the train, which was booked to leave at 2 o'clock, started, and then those who had secured seats settled themselves comfortably, many going to sleep. At every station crowds of people shouted at the train as it rushed by, but no stop was made. About a mile beyond the Last Pearl river a company of Mississippi militia, who had been sent down to the state line yesterday afternoon to prevent the fight, was found. The speed of the train had been increased and it ran by them at the rate of forty miles an hour, the crowd shouting and yelling at them in derision.

In the last coach were a number of prominent sports from the East. Principal among them were Joe Coburn, Dominick McCaffrey, Bud Foley and Billy Madden. It was a noteworthy fact that although the passengers on the train numbered among them some of the roughest characters of New Orleans, they were very quiet and orderly. Few of them were drunk.

At 9 o'clock the second train reached the battle ground after several vexations and long delays. The locomotive did not have power enough to draw the train up the grade on the round curves. The coaches were also in poor running order, hot boxes being frequent, and causing delays. Within twelve miles of the battle ground half of the train was detached to await the return of the locomotive. When the train arrived at its destination a rush was made to the ring, which was pitched half a mile from the depot. It was 9:10 before the train made its appearance, and five minutes after its appearance the amphitheater was packed with a mass of eager and perspiring humanity, some thing like 3000 in number.

WAITING FOR THE FIGHT

The Crowd Was Very Hungry and Thirsty and Refreshments Were Scarce

By this time a friendly cloud had spread over the face of the sun and tempered its burning rays. The crowd waited patiently and in good humor. Many were hungry and thirsty and tired, but there was no relief, except at the hands of a colored man who peddled cheese sandwiches of doubtful age at 10 cents apiece, while another colored man peddled water at 5 cents a cup.

A wave of delight was caused by the appearance of a man with a tray full of filled beer glasses, which sold like hot cakes for twenty-five cents a glass. For some reason after disposing of his load he failed to reappear, in spite of repeated demands in concert for "beer" from a point directly at right angles to the reporters' stand. They got no beer, however, and somebody started a corner in water, and the price rapidly rose from 50 cents to 75 cents a bucket.

At 9:45 Poney Moore and Donovan appeared within the enclosure, and were received with cheers, more because of the prospect of an early fight than as a mark of deference to the recipients. Donovan looked a shade pale.

The next to appear were Dan Murphy, Tom Castello, Mike Cleary, Joe Murphy and Wakely, Johnson and Barnett, all backers of Sullivan. Bud Renaud's appearance was also the signal for applause.

IN THE RING

Kilrain Was Unshaven, and Looked Haggard and Weak

Kilrain was the first of the gladiators to put in an appearance. He was accompanied by Charley Mitchell. They were both received with applause and cheers, in acknowledgment of which Mitchell tipped his derby. Kilrain's appearance dismayed his backers. He was unshaven and looked haggard, worn and weak. In short, he looked scared. He was white under the gills, and behaved like a man being led to execution. He was not stripped, but wore a red striped shirt and striped pants. He afterwards disrobed in the ring.

Soon thereafter Sullivan came accompanied by the ever vigilant Muldoon. Sull wore a long ulster or sweater, as it is called, extending from his neck almost down to his ankles. His appearance was the signal for a tornado of applause and cheers. The demonstration was not without its depressing effect on the Kilrain corner.

Both principals were led to seats in corners diagonally opposite each other and were surrounded by their friends, bottle holders, seconds, backers, and a miscellaneous throng of partisans.

The fanning process seemed to have an invigorating effect on Kilrain and he began to brighten under its influence.

Sullivan looked flushed, but not particularly buoyant. He also submitted to being fanned with patient weakness and seemed to realize that his destiny hung upon the issue of the contest. Sullivan's immediate seconds were William Muldoon and Mike Cleary; [illegible] Dan Murphy of Boston, bottle holder, and Phil Lynch, umpire. On the other side were Charles Mitchell and Mike Donovan, seconds; W. P. Masterson and [illegible] Butler, umpires, and Joe Murphy, bottle holder.

A BURIED CITY DISCOVERED

Ruins of a Forgotten Race Found in Honduras

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—The Times publishes the following special dispatch from [illegible], Honduras, from A. J. Miller, which comes via New Orleans. It says: It was not until now that I was at liberty to inform you that I had made a discovery of a buried city, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to take [illegible] against others [illegible]. The discovery was made during our sojourn in Olancho about a month since at the [illegible] of [illegible] the Honduras government the exclusive right of exploration. The ruins are located [illegible] [illegible] miles from the mouth of the [illegible] [illegible] from the mouth of the [illegible], one of its main tributaries. [illegible] appear [illegible] only [illegible] no [illegible] [illegible] with three [illegible].

The Indians of this region are the Payas and none of them [illegible] the existence of such ruins [illegible] that they antedate the earliest civilization. The ruins are partly buried by the [illegible] and covered by an immense forest. They are perhaps two miles square, and the greater portion is in an excellent state of preservation. Our casual inspection developed only evidence of a former city partly surrounded by a wall, [illegible] an immense workshop where ancient Indians [illegible] manufactured. Many beautiful designs were observed. White granite entered largely into all the implements and utensils found, and this presents a curious study, as no stone of this class is found anywhere in this immediate section of Honduras.

Among the relics [illegible] [illegible] preservation were found immense [illegible] [illegible] stone weighing 800 pounds, granite bowls on three legs weighing forty pounds, tortillas blocks of various sizes weighing twenty-five to 600 pounds, urns and vases chased in curious hieroglyphics and ornamented with the heads of snakes, turtles, tigers or [illegible] human form. The carving and general ornaments were similar in some respects to those found about Copan and Quirigua. They are undoubtedly very ancient.

A MURDERER'S FATE

The Slayer of Deputy Sheriff Wren Fatally Shot Near Visalia.

VISALIA, Cal., July 8.—Charles Reeves, who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Wren, was shot by Samuel Ellis last night.

Reeves stopped at the ranch of John A. Patterson two miles north of Visalia last night at 8 o'clock and demanded his supper. Reeves was well armed. Patterson sent his son to town on horseback to inform the authorities, who immediately sent out a posse. The house was surrounded. It was very foggy and the Captain, Sing Hing, himself near the breakers, dropped his anchor which failed to hold her and she gradually drifted until she was hard and fast on the sandy bottom within about fifty yards of the beach. The tug Robarts, this morning picked up the crew, who had taken to the ship's boats, so all are saved.

The tugs will make an effort to pull her off at high tide to-night, but a successful effort is doubted, as it is thought that both the ship and cargo will be a total loss.

After the assignment of the committees the [illegible] adjourned.

THE MONTANA CONVENTION

A Statement of the Principal Issues To Be Settled

HELENA, July 8.—The principal issues that will come before the convention are the articles relating to apportionment of the legislature, and the county officers holding over during the term for which they were elected two years, if they are turned out by the October election their term will only be for six months. If they are elected this fall it would be for a term of one or three years. The regular election is in 1890, and this is an off year. The democrats advocate the passage of the measure to elect this fall all county officers and the republicans oppose it, and favor an election next year, leaving the present officials to serve out their terms which would expire in December, 1890. There is good ground for the statement that a sufficient number of democrats will vote with the republicans to defeat the effort, the result of which will be to make no change in the present status of affairs. This is a matter which will be a bone of contention that will occupy the consideration of the members for several days.

There will be a lively fight over the apportionment article which is likely to create bad feeling. Both of these fights will be contested on partisan lines.

The leading members favor the passage of an enactment providing for doing away with the district courts and establishing superior courts, as in California. There is said to be strong opposition to such a measure throughout the territory.

The taxation of mines will also be an important matter considered. Only the product is now taxed. This will be an issue between the cattle men and the mining interests.

The delegate who proposed any favorable legislation about prohibition or woman suffrage would make himself the laughing stock of the public.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

HELENA, Mont., July 8.—No business of interest or importance has yet been transacted here. The convention met at 2 P. M., but the president did not have his list of committees prepared and a recess was taken until 8 P. M. The committees will be announced to-morrow. As soon as routine matters are cleared up the business will be taken up and rushed. The intention is not to consume more than a month's time in the session.

The announcement of the committees was the only business transacted at the evening session. Toole gets the chairmanship of the legislative department, Maginnis of the executive, Hershfield of future amendments, Ex-Governor Carpenter has a place on an important committee.

Roman Catholic Geography.

Catholic Review

If it be at all possible to make the public schools devoid of any trace of Christianity we are heartily in favor of it. We Catholics are forever gone out of them, and the sooner they are made pagan and Christless the sooner will all decently religious Americans follow us into the school where children may learn that the people of the oblate spheroid called the earth were made by God the Father, redeemed by God the Son, and sanctified by God the Holy Ghost. In this way we teach geography.

ONE PERSON BURNED TO DEATH

Great Indignation Against the Chinese Thieves—Mayor Abrahams Disperses a Crowd That Gathers in the Chinese Quarter

ELLENSBURGH, W. T., July 8.—The placards found on Palmer's stable yesterday reading "We will finish the town to-night" caused considerable uneasiness. People generally took no stock in the matter, regarding it as the joke of some fool who could find nothing else to do but to attempt to frighten timid people. Mayor Abrams took no chances and appointed extra police, who kept a strict guard of the city. Every person found on the streets was compelled to give an explanation as to why he was out so late. No trouble was had. No attempt was made to start another fire.

This has been the liveliest day since the conflagration and active building operations are under way along all the business streets and teams, drays, lumber wagons and brick carts are busily engaged in hauling material for reconstruction.

The determination to make Ellensburgh one of the most solid cities in the Northwest increases and the prospect of getting money for this purpose adds to the determination. This afternoon a telegram was received from a Boston capitalist offering to loan $100,000 on long time and at a reasonable rate of interest. The offer was accepted. Propositions of this kind are coupled with the demand that the rebuilding be speedily done, which is just the way the people of Ellensburgh are in the habit of doing things, so Boston has no reason to complain in this case.

Thirty more brick houses are being contracted for to-day and applications were made by others for loans amounting to $50,000.

The Chinese who engaged in stealing clothing and on whose premises 100 pairs of trousers were found yesterday, are still in jail. The indignation has somewhat subsided, and there is no further danger of Chinatown being raided. The people say the law must take its course and the fair name of the city shall not suffer by any violent act.

HUMAN BONES FOUND

To-night William McGuire discovered human bones in the ashes of his hardware store on the corner of Pearl and Fourth streets. How they came there and whose remains they are is a mystery. The building was a frame structure and burned rapidly. It is not known that any one was in it on the night of the fire.

There were more applications for relief to-day than at any time since the fire. Provisions are still scarce. There are no idlers in the city. All are willing to take an active part in the rebuilding.

At 9:30 this evening another large crowd assembled in the vicinity of Chinatown but they dispersed peaceably after Mayor Abrams mounted a lumber pile and read the riot act. If the lawless element attempt any riotous act they will be most severely dealt with, as the people are determined that law and order shall prevail.

The movement to add twenty feet to the width of Third street, making it 100 feet wide, and to change its name to Third avenue is gaining strength, but many doubt if the council will heed the petition of interested property owners for the change. All of the streets are eighty feet wide but the citizens want one wide thoroughfare they can point out as the street of the city, and Third street, they think, is the best adapted. In the first place there are only a few wooden buildings left standing on it which can be moved back to conform with the change in the width. Besides the Northern Pacific depot is situated at the west end of the street and if the street is rebuilt as proposed, a stranger's first impression of the city, gained by a look up Third street on alighting at the depot, would be very favorable.

J. B. Moffitt has decided not to add another story to his brick hotel, which is now built up to the second story. The principal hotel of the city having been swept by the fire the people urged Mr. Moffitt to hurry his building to completion without delay and he will finish it at three stories as originally proposed. With the steam fitting in it will have cost between $35,000 and $40,000. It will require $15,000 to furnish the hotel. Mr. Moffitt is going to build an annex to the hotel on the south. It will be 50x100 feet two stories high and will cost $10,000. Work on the annex will begin soon.

THE VALUE OF SHADE TREES.

When the city is rebuilt the council will be called upon to plant shade trees for ornamental and protective purposes. Many people are firmly convinced that if there had been more shade trees in the city they would have proved barriers to the fire. They think that the tree that stood between Shoudy's brick merchandise store and Blumauer's clothing store, a wooden building, prevented the flames from communicating with the latter place. Blumauer's place was scorched and had it been burned the wooden buildings on the north side of Fourth street, opposite Anthony's, where the fire broke out, which the caprice of the wind saved on the first outbreak of the flames would have followed. It was a single tree that kept the conflagration from spreading eastward to the residence portion. The high wind drove fiery tongues from the Masonic temple across the street toward a small dwelling, but the fire spent its force in the tree and the house was saved.

Public sentiment is in favor of putting a check upon the gamblers, who have heretofore had unlimited sway and of keeping the saloons within respectful bounds. Within the past two years Ellensburgh has developed from a frontier habitation to a thriving little city and the transition has been so rapid and complete that the people always eager to engage in new schemes to beautify the city and increase its commercial relations with the tributary country have scarcely had time to give thought to such important matters having bearing on the peace and dignity of the city. Now that the city is practically to start anew in many ways people are talking of urging the council to pass a high license ordinance and of allowing only two saloons on each block. The gamblers will undoubtedly receive prompt attention. They have had their way long enough and have become brazen and defiant. They have been either too powerful for the authorities or else the officers have had more respect for their money than for their oaths of office. Gambling has been carried on in a shamefully open manner. In Portland one passing along the streets that hear the click of the chips in gambling holes, but in Ellensburgh one could not only hear the rattle of the ivories, but from the sidewalk see the men playing stud poker, faro and other games of chance.

HE TRUSTED THE "COLONEL."

General W. T. Sherman's Face Is Good for an Umbrella and Overcoat.

New York World

The other night General Sherman went up to the Broadway theater to enjoy Francis Wilson's merrymaking in the comic opera of "The Oolah." There was a clear sky when the general went in, but before the performance was over it began to rain, and the temperature became raw and cold. At the end of the second act he went into the Gedney house, a few doors below the theater and inquired of Clerk Majilton if he could hire an umbrella, at the same time explaining that he had been caught out in his evening suit, and he feared rheumatism and other complaints. Majilton didn't know him, but he thought he could well afford to take chances on such an eminently respectable looking gentleman and although the polite clerk has a rotund figure and weighs about 312 he gladly offered to loan him his overcoat, as well as his silver handled umbrella.

"But," said the general, "you are lending these things to an entire stranger, and you ought to accept some kind of a deposit to secure you against dishonesty."

"Oh, that's all right, colonel," replied Majilton as he tossed a key gracefully to Louis Harrison. "I can't be deceived by you. I'd trust that face of yours for anything."

The warrior was tickled by the compliment, and he remarked casually as he went out with his tall, gaunt form enveloped in the garment that fitted him like a meal-sack, "I'll take you at your word and you shall have my card when I return these things."

The next day the coat and umbrella arrived, accompanied by a note of thanks and a photograph of General William T. Sherman with his autograph across the face. "Great Scott," said Majilton, "and I called him 'colonel,' just as if he had been an ordinary American citizen! I wouldn't mind it half so much if I had called him judge, but to be reduced in military rank after all his years of service—and by a hotel clerk! It's awful!"

A FLOWER LEGEND.

Sweet is the legend of a happy soul,
Pacing in dreams, the sward of Paradise;
Around her blew flowers myriad in dyes.

Low was the clime, a twilight arched with stars,
Long arrowy lights on cedared hill and dale,
Filled with a mellow atmosphere whose heart
Breathed of myrrh, and spice, and galingale.

She pausing underneath the tree of life,
Heard all its mystic branches palpitate,
And a low voice —"Take thou the fairest flower
Between the eastern and the western gate."

And, rising up, she wandered forth amidst
Lilies beloved in time by Solomon;
And forest frankincense and wondrous blooms,
Whose chalices were dyed with moon and sun.

Rounding her path, there glimmered in the dusk
Vast star-eyed blossoms, bright and marvelous—
Great charms of streaked splendor, living flowers
Lost to the fallen world and unto us.

At dawn the angel found her at the gate—
Weeping, but looping in her vesture's fold
Of all the gorgeous blooms of Paradise,
Passionate violets and marigold.

And lifting up her low eyes, dashed with rain,
I paced, she said, "between the east and west;
Heaven's fairest flowers were subject to my hand,
But I did gather what I loved the best."

Answered the radiant angel—"Sweet and wise
Thy tender care hath chosen the fairer part,
Henceforth shall violets be loved of love,
And marigolds refresh the tired heart."

"Awake!" And she unclosed her eyes to see
The morning sunlight beating on the blind,
And round her bed the breath of marigolds
Swam with the violets on the garden wind.

HOW I CONSULTED THE ORACLE OF THE GOLDFISHES.

BY JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

I watch you in your crystal sphere,
And wonder if you see and hear
Those shapes and sounds that stir the wide
Conjecture of a world outside;
In your pent lives, as we in ours,
Have you surmises dim of powers,
Of presences obscurely shown,
Of lives a riddle to your own,
Just on the senses' outer verge,
Where sense-nerves into soul-nerves merge,
Where we conspire our own deceit
Confederate in deft Fancy's feat,
And the fooled brain befools the eyes
With pageants woven of its own lies?
But are they lies? Why more than those
Phantoms that startle your repose,
Half seen, half heard, then flit away,
And leave you your prose-bounded day?

The things ye see as shadows I
Know to be substance; tell me why
My visions, like those haunting you,
May not be as substantial too.
Alas, who ever answer heard
From fish, and dream-fish too! Absurd!
Your consciousness I half divine,
But you are wholly deaf to mine.
Go I dismiss you; ye have done
All that ye could, our silk is spun;
Dive back into the deep of dreams,
Where what is real is what seems!
Yet I shall fancy till my grave
Your lives to mine a lesson gave;
If lesson none, an image, then,
Impeaching self-conceit in men
Who put their confidence alone
In what they call the Seen and Known.
How seen? How known? As through you glass
Our wavering apparitions pass
Perplexingly, then subtly wrought
To some quite other thing by thought.
Here shall my resolution be:
The shadow of the mystery
Is haply wholesomer for eyes
That cheat us to be overwise,
And I am happy in my right
To love God's darkness as his light.

De Blowitz as an Interviewer.

Blakely Hall's London Letter.

Probably there are few people who relish the humors of interviewing better than I. [illegible] Blowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times, though his humor is unconscious. When the late King Alfonso of Spain was passing through Paris at the time of the disputes with Germany over the Caroline islands De Blowitz got the king (who was doubtless in a bad humor) in the railway train. His account of the interview read something like this: "I approached the carriage of his majesty and said: 'I am De Blowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times.' His majesty said 'Oh.' Then I inquired if his majesty had any message for the London Times. His majesty said 'No,' and pulled down the blind of his carriage window. I bowed and said 'Good day.'" So ended our interview. This is typical of M. de Blowitz and of British interviewing in general.

General Sherman on Old-Fashioned Religion.

Harper's Weekly.

A personal friend recently asked General Sherman what his religious faith was, and he reverently replied: "I believe in God, the Almighty. That is as far as I have got."

It is absurd to suffer from Dyspepsia when Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

Tilbury Fox M. D., the eminent medical writer in his work "Skin Diseases," thus accounts for the pimples so common on the face and neck: Eating too rich or too greasy food, or too hastily eating while the excretory organs are sluggish causes in most people indigestion or dyspeptic condition which causes the blood to move sluggishly, which in turn enfeebles the pores. The result is that the exuding secretions block in the pores, which inflame, each distinct inflammation being a pimple. Dr. Fox therefore does not prescribe "blood purifiers" so called, but a "dyspepsia cure" to be taken, to use his own words "till the dyspeptic symptoms have disappeared." The old idea was, that face eruptions were caused by a "humor in the blood," for which they treated the blood, giving them iodide of potash. Hence the reason why the old sarsaparillas contain potash. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla follows the modern ideas of Dr. Fox, and aims with gentle vegetable alteratives at the stomach and digestive organs. This makes it apparent why it cures dyspepsia and indigestion and the pimples and skin eruptions that result therefrom and why sarsaparillas that use potash fail.

SALEM IS GROWING

More rapidly than any other city of its size upon the Pacific Coast.

Three million brick will be used in building in Salem the present year.

Eighteen magnificent new brick store rooms, having a frontage of nearly four hundred feet, are now in process of construction. An extensive ice factory has already been constructed. An immense woolen mill will be completed before the end of the season. A forty thousand dollar box factory is to be built. From present appearances nearly two hundred dwelling houses will have been erected here during the year Work will soon begin upon the State Reform School, and immense sums of money are to be spent upon the other State buildings. Nearly four miles of street railway has been built in Salem within the past six months Various other extensive improvements, involving the expenditure of large sums of money, are contemplated Salem has the finest mills upon the Coast. Salem has immense water power and expensive manufactories, employing large numbers of hands Salem has electric lights, street cars, telephones, gas, extensive water works, and all modern conveniences Salem has thirteen churches, and the oldest and best institutions of learning upon the Pacific Coast Salem is famed as a city of churches and schools

Salem is on the line of the great Southern Pacific Railway, and will shortly be connected with another great transcontinental railway. Two or three local lines are also contemplated. Salem has a free outlet to the sea by water, and has no fear of ever suffering extortion at the hands of the transportation companies

Polk and Marion counties, the two richest counties in the Willamette Valley, which is famed for its fertility the world over, are both tributary to Salem, being connected at this point by a new free bridge, erected at an expense of $50,000. This is the very center of the richest part of the richest valley on the Pacific Coast.

Salem has an advantage over other State Capitals from the fact that, under the requirements of the Constitution, the State Insane Asylum, State Penitentiary, Blind School, Deaf and Dumb School and other public institutions, are located here. Salem is universally admitted to be the most beautiful and healthy city on the Pacific Coast.

According to a census, completed by the clerk of the school district, in March, 1889, Salem showed an increase of over 25 per cent for the year.

According to this census, the present population is about 11,000, of which nearly 3000 have been added within the past year. At the same rate of increase, her population will be over 30,000 within the next five years. She is now increasing more rapidly than ever before.

Salem is wide awake and progressive and is to-day spending more money to advertise and develop her resources than any other city of twice her size west of the Rocky Mountains

Salem is surrounded upon all sides by the finest fruit, stock and grain lands in the world. Good fruit lands in California sell readily at $1000 per acre. Far better fruit lands near Salem, where no irrigation is ever required, can be bought at from $30 to $100 per acre.

No other locality upon the face of the globe offers greater inducements to the investor or homeseeker

Property is cheap, but is rapidly enhancing in value

Parties who wish to learn more in regard to this favored locality can secure illustrated descriptive pamphlets free upon application to President of the Board of Trade of Salem, Oregon

Sheriff Multnomah county etc —I have requisition papers for Mrs. Walters Is she there? Answer quick G W CARRAWAY

After Mrs Walters had been discharged an OREGONIAN reporter asked Sheriff Kelly if he had heard anything lately from Carraway "Yes I received a dispatch from him this morning, dated Sacramento, which said that he would arrive in this city to-morrow (Tuesday) morning or afternoon," replied Mr Kelly "He asked me to hold the prisoner, but as I have no grounds of course I could not. Why the man should want to take the round about way via Sacramento to reach this city from Topeka Ks, is more than I can understand

It was stated last evening that Mrs Lizzie Walters, the alleged murderess, had left with her husband for British Columbia If she is really guilty and has the start allowed it will be a difficult matter for the Kansas constable to find her, unless he enlists other aid The exact nature of the charges against the woman is still unknown but it is stated on pretty fair authority that it is a [illegible]cide

THE DEMOCRATS ON THE ALERT

They Will Contest Every Inch of Ground in Montana and Washington.

NEW YORK, July 8 —Commenting editorially on the coming elections in the four new states, the World, democratic, this morning says "It can be stated on unquestioned authority that the democratic national committee does not intend to let the elections in the four new northwest states go by default The democratic national committee has decided to make a vigorous fight in all four of the new states All factions of the party are united on that point Colonel Brice believes that two of the states Montana and Washington can be landed in the democratic camp When the democratic national committee met last month, the campaign in the northwest was discussed informally Since then Colonel Brice has been in communication with the leading members of the committee

For obvious reasons the democrats do not propose to use any brass bands in the contest The battle will assume more the character of a still hunt on their side The democrats will have trusted representatives in each of the states and every inch of ground will be contested A special agent of the committee will go to Montana some time this month and take a preliminary survey of the field He will also go to Washington and through the two Dakotas About the first of September special representatives of the national committee will be sent to each state and will remain until the election has been decided The only difference of opinion that is said to exist among the members of the democratic committee is as to whether they shall make the fight in all four of the states or concentrate their efforts on carrying Montana and Washington."

PROHIBITIONIST MEETING.

Dr. John A Brooks Spoke at Masonic Hall Last Evening.

A Very Large Crowd of Anti-Saloon Citizens Assemble to Hear One of Last Year's Candidates for Vice President.

A full house assembled at Masonic hall last night to hear Dr John A Brooks on the issue of prohibition

N S Dygert presided over the meeting Rev A J Joslyn of Vancouver led in prayer, and the Prohibition Glee Club rendered some rousing songs

Dr Brooks was introduced by Rev David Wetzell, began his address by refuting the campaign reports that he had been and was still a rebel He said as to the results of the war

I am as glad as you are I sympathized with the South but was as wrong as you licensed men are now The politicians say prohibition is dead I said in 1852 abolition was dead But in 1856 there was an earthquake and in 1860 there was a flood and I changed my mind God and truth never die and the cause of truth can never die

"The liquor traffic is enthroned in lust for gain, and the high license temperance man is about as greedy for this gain as the saloon keeper

It is enthroned in the lust for power The saloon controls the politics of the day, and the politician must ask leave of it to be elected. It is enthroned in the appetite of the drinker, and wields its power over a race of slaves.

There are but three ways of dealing with the liquor traffic—free whisky high license and prohibition I am not in favor of free whisky but as between high license and free whisky I am for free whisky Before the era of license we never heard of the saloon in politics Now it rules supreme Before the era of high license we drank four gallons of liquor per capita now we drink twelve gallons per capita. The speaker here to show the

POWER OF THE SALOON

In politics gave numerous instances of the election of democrats or republicans as it best suited the saloon interests. Last fall the whisky vote elected Hill, a democrat of the basest sort governor, and Harrison president of the United States The liquor traffic of St Louis elected three republicans to seats formerly held by democrats and gave the United States congress to the republicans Why were the republicans put in power? Because they were better friends to the traffic? No sir But they knew if they kept the republican party out of power it would have gone to pieces and given place to a prohibition party For the same reason the traffic can't afford to defeat the democratic party twice and the policy of the traffic is alternation to keep the prohibition forces divided

They tell us prohibition don't prohibit Well some places it does it But why? Because there is not a man on the bench Where they have men on the bench it does prohibit A gentleman leading a Yankee through the catacombs came to a candle which had been burning for 900 years and had never been out The impious Yankee thereupon with a mighty puff blew it out Why had it not been out? Nobody ever tried to blow it out You weak kneed temperance men say the liquor candle has been burning for centuries and can't be blown out. Let somebody have a chance to blow it out let some power that is a ruling force in politics go into power for the purpose of blowing it out and out it goes

You good republican friends thought Harrison would blow it out But has he done it? Has he made any attempt to do it? Harrison doesn't believe in prohibition If you old abolitionists had put up a slaveholder for president in 1860 do you think you would ever have abolished slavery? If you had put up a man who was not opposed to slavery Jeff Davis and his legions of slaveholders would be dancing over your graves to-day You put up a man who was opposed to slavery, and with one blow of his brawny arm he abolished it

If you want the liquor traffic destroyed, elect a party opposed to it It will not be the democratic party It is for whisky first, last and all the time and says so It will not be the republican party, for its policy is high license "

Here the speaker dealt some telling blows from his standpoint at what he called the high license iniquity

If you ever dethrone the demon rum continued the speaker it will be by uniting the good men of both old parties in one grand party that believes in destroying the saloon "

Dr Brooks is a very forcible speaker and his telling wit at times kept up a storm of applause throughout his address of about an hour and a half He closed with a final appeal to the prohibitionists to stand together, organize, support their state paper and in short to run a political machine of their own, with full equipments and make its central idea the destruction of the saloon

LONG TOSSED ON THE SEA

A Correspondent Who Thinks That Reports of Voyages Are Very Interesting

SALEM Or July 5

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In your issue of the 29th ult., is published Captain Nalle's report of the passage of the British ship Oakworth from the mouth of the Columbia river to Queenstown Ireland Permit me to say that such reports are exceedingly interesting especially to those who have friends on board, as help or otherwise There is probably no ship leaves Portland or Astoria but what has on board some boy or boys who have abruptly left their homes and whose parents are nearly heart broken over their departure

Some of these sons have filial love enough left to write their parents as to their whereabouts while others, to secrete themselves write not at all To the parents and friends of those who do write and who know the name of the vessel the captain's name and where bound these reports are valuable and, indeed precious Perhaps it may be an only son and may be and nearly always is, his first voyage Think of the yearnings of a parent's heart under these circumstances and ask if these reports are valued!

To those who never have had the feelings aroused by an experience of this kind, these reports might prove uninteresting but an added value attaches when a parent knows that his child is on [illegible] and when after months of dread and uncertainty he learns of the safety of the vessel It might be suggested that masters making reports of like nature state what deaths if any occur

Consuls tell me that hardly a week passes but what letters of inquiry are received from nearly every state in the Union asking if [illegible] went out in a ship The parents are having their sorrow increased and many times this reports like Captain Nalle's shed a light that relieves many a parent of a load of grief, as the writer has abundant reason to testify

Permit me Mr Editor to thank you for publishing while extending my gratitude to Captain Nalle for writing the report above alluded to

BIG BEND NOTES

WATERVILLE Douglas Co, W T July

The rains of last Wednesday and Thursday were most welcome to those crops put in on sod and hurt by squirrels as now it will bring in at least twenty-five bushels to their owners but it was not necessary to those crops put in deep and on old ground Such crops will produce from thirty to forty bushels at least of wheat All vegetables are immense as well as corn, We hold a fair this fall which will astonish the strangers as to what we raise in a year bringing failure to so many parts of the territory. We hope this year that the ridiculous statement that the Big Bend west of Grand coulee is too dry will be exploded.

The strangest thing to us is that there are still thousands of acres of government land not taken up

This state of things will not last long however, If the railroads now on the outskirts ever get a move on themselves

The government is asking bids for a star route from Waterville to the Salmon river mines via Foster creek ferry This means a great deal to Waterville

There is a splendid opening here for a clothing and gents furnishing goods store and a dry and fancy goods store

The finishing touches are being put on our handsome court house

A T Green is a very sick man All feel a personal interest in his recovery, as he has been a great friend to Waterville

Two new stores are in course of erection.

The district court docket this term will be small as usual

WAGGONER TO PENNOYER.

An Open Letter to His Excellency, the Governor.

It Is Asserted the Latter's Theory May Have Some Pride of Ancestry, but Can Have No Hope of Posterity

SALEM, July 8

Hon Sylvester Pennoyer—Dear Governor As you seem to desire the public press to keep your opinions and yourself before the people, you will no doubt pardon the liberty I take as a citizen of this state in reviewing one of your messages to the last legislature I refer to the one vetoing senate bill No 7 which was read in both houses on February 19, 1889 I do not care to particularly notice the error you make in stating that the compensation received by the old commission was $ 00 per annum, though the law fixed it at $ 000 and no more was received, but wish to call attention to the causes which you allege induced you to attempt to remove the commissioners. Your message says

"Under the existing law the governor removed the two commissioners for the reason that after their attention had been called to the mandatory provision of the law which required that in their biennial report to the legislative assembly they should report particularly what changes in the classification of freight, or what changes in the rates of freight or fares are advisable or necessary they had failed to comply with the mandatory provision and had made their report, in which they entirely disregarded that special mandate of the law

Now Governor if you will kindly turn to the 19th and 21 pages of the commissioners report you will find the recommendations made by the board to the O R & N Co for reductions on their line

On pages 2 and 30 are recommendations to the Oregon & California railroad the Oregonian railway (limited) and the Willamette Valley & Coast railroad These were all the reductions proposed by the board after a very careful investigation of the transportation business of the state and are referred to in its report on page 41 in the following language

"In respect to classification of freights the commission have not found it necessary or advisable to recommend any change The classification adopted by the roads in this state is mainly that known as the Western classification and is believed to be as well adapted for its purpose as any that could be suggested

As to what changes in freight rates should be made the board has made recommendations to the several roads of such changes as it thought were reasonable and in the interest of the general public These recommendations have been set out in full in a former part of the report to which reference may be had The change recommended relates wholly to the charges on grain for the reason that a reduction of freight rates on the export produce of the farm would be more beneficial to the producing classes than if made on general merchandise

It seems impossible that the board could have made itself more clearly understood on this subject or that any justification could have been found for your rash condemnation It was not a matter between you and the commissioners, and could not have rightfully had any personal bearing or be made to serve any political purpose It was a subject in which the whole people of the state had a deep and common interest

In order to explain your antagonism to the methods by which the people were trying to solve the question of transportation you found it necessary to condemn the commissioners report

It was before you You should have examined it You had no right to neglect a subject of such importance It was the first effort of the people to resist the exactions of railroad corporations They expected you to treat it fairly It was criminal not to do so

That you wanted a maximum rate law, with yourself authorized to act as commissioner to enforce it will not satisfy the people that you acted wisely in attempting to defeat the expressed will of their representatives, or that your success would not have resulted in the subversion of the public good to private ends

The effort which is being made by political adherents in the grange to advance your theory for the management of railroad affairs can only yield you a limited amount of flattery while it must materially retard the advance of that body toward a solution of the question in which they are the most deeply interested You will hardly be able to convince the people that your ideas on this subject are not Utopian, and investigation will show that they are contradicted by the experience of every state which has sought a solution of the freight problem

They will not fall in the lead of one who defies all precedent and whose feet seem to be guided by another light than that of the lamp of experience They will hold you responsible for trifling with a great subject

You will resemble certain men during the Rebellion who loved the Union but opposed all national measures for its preservation You will bear the same relation to the people which they did to patriotism

The corporations of the state must feel the same friendly interest in you which Cortez felt in the first tribe which he was able to turn against their countrymen when he conquered Mexico

Your theory that the railroads of the state should be controlled by the governor may have some pride in ancestry but can have no hope of posterity Respectfully yours

A STATE WEATHER BUREAU.

Editorial Comments on the Subject by a California Journal.

The Inestimable Benefits Resulting From These Bureaus—What Has Been Accomplished in Oregon in a Very Short Time.

The Sacramento Record-Union of June 29 contains a long editorial under the caption "A State Weather Bureau" Among other things the paper says

The meteorological observations of the signal service corps of the United States army have been of inestimable benefit to the people No one now thinks that the cost of maintaining the observation stations is ill expended. On the contrary we would scarcely think that the country could get along without the signal service, so important a part does it play in the economy of everyday life at this time But valuable as is the corps to science commerce and agriculture it is not equal to the needs of the country Expanding intelligence on meteorological subjects has created a demand for greater activity in and more stations for meteorological observations Twenty two of the states of the Union have responded to this demand and have established more or less elaborate systems of state observations under state weather bureaus

Our next door neighbors Nevada and Oregon, have set up very successfully such bureaus, and the report of that of Oregon for one of the months of the year of 1889 is now before us It gives evidence of the importance and high value of the scheme The signal corps observers are few in number and are situated at widely separated points, Their work relates to the whole country, and is confined pretty closely to storm observations and the gathering of data that will enable the headquarters to forecast with reasonable certainty the state of weather we may expect in the twenty four hours succeeding the publication of the probabilities Of course the stations of the corps secure a great amount of valuable data relating to the meteorology of the country that is given in the elaborate reports of headquarters annually and at other stated periods State weather bureaus, however relate solely to state observations and their relation to immediate or local interests They therefore involve of necessity a great number of observation stations which are usually filled by volunteer observers. These stations enlist the observations of the people generally and from this mass of testimony the headquarters of the state system is enabled to arrive at conclusions that amount to reliable judgments in most cases and are of the highest value to the agriculturist and of scarcely less importance to the man of trade

Under the Oregon bill the state names the chief or supervising director, and the chief signal officer of the United States army names the assistant director The state service is thus directly related to the federal service and the two are harmonious in purpose and labor No salaries are paid except for one clerk, and the labor of the bureau is therefore at the outset one of public spirit but it is believed [illegible] that there will be no failure of interest in the scheme because there are no dividends for the officials of the new system The state simply buys the necessary instruments and these are placed and used as the director deems best Says Assistant Director Pague

"While in Oregon the primary object of the bureau is to make climatic investigations in every section of the state, either important and resultant characteristics affected by the climate will be treated upon—the climate and its effect on crops, soils productions health water supply, etc The temperature of the soils at different depths the number of hours of sunshine the number of hours during which rain falls the rate of evaporation and other investigations will be made and duly published

The signal sergeant at Sacramento Mr Barwick says upon the same subject, with some exuberance of utterance

I must confess that I am discouraged at the small amount of interest taken by its people in the climatic conditions of this state, which stands pre-eminently as the central and best portion of the Pacific slope as well as the great and glorious Golden West. Even our snowy neighbor, silvery Nevada, has had established a State Weather Service by its intelligent and far seeing legislators Certainly if that state deems a systemized and accurate record of its climate should be blazoned and advertised to the world what ought Californians to think? * * * Our Oregonian neighbors of the north elected members to their legislature who, during their session of 1888 89, covered themselves with everlasting honor and glory by passing a bill that gives to the people of that state a "State Weather Service" whose climate is never so good, healthful, or healing as our own

The subject is presented thus early that the people may be thoroughly advised upon it. If it is freely discussed now, and the experience of the states where the system has been tried are gathered and given to the people by the press the next legislature will come to the capital with intelligence upon the subject and be enabled to act upon the proposition to establish a system of state weather observations with wisdom While the subject is comparatively new to us we are sufficiently informed upon it to realize that a state weather service working in connection with the signal service corps of the government, will be of inestimable value to California and under present lights we can understand how it can be established and operated at but slight expense

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

It Will Be Removed From Texas on Account of a Local Law

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8 —Leland Stanford and C P Huntington have decided to withdraw the Southern Pacific Company from Texas A late law in that state provides that no railroad company operating roads within its borders shall have any legal status unless it maintains its principal offices therein The Southern Pacific officials say that they could not do the latter therefore the three Texas and Louisiana roads that now form a part of the Southern Pacific's main line to New Orleans will be hereafter operated as distinct roads with different sets of officers

Julius Kruttschnitt as general manager of these roads will remove from New Orleans to Houston, Texas

Nicholson, formerly general manager of the Atlantic system will remain president of the Morgan Line Steamship Company, running from New Orleans to New York

SAN FRANCISCO'S CITY HALL.

When Completed, It Will Have Cost Nearly Five Millions.

SAN FRANCISCO July 8 —The new city hall, which has been in course of construction here for many years has cost to the end of last month $3,7[illegible]0,10[illegible] There should be added to this amount deducted from the balance in the treasury for payments to fall due on existing contracts the sum of $29,658, and the total cost to date will reach $3,779,759

The estimated amount to complete the new city hall, without considering the cost of the mansard roof, but simply to finish the two McAllister street wings the basement and the unfinished rooms in the main building on the upper floors, lay out the walks and grounds erect all of the proposed granite steps and fences and build a suitable main tower, will amount to $1,000,000 additional and will absorb the balance unexpended June 30 1889, together with the levy for this and most of that allowed as the limit for the next fiscal year This will make the new city hall cost, when finished complete, without the mansard roof, about $4 780,000 and it will take until the latter part of 1892 to complete it.

PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY.

Senator Morrill on the Modern Democratic Organization

July Forum

The democratic party in earlier days had some fixed principles, everywhere openly proclaimed, but it has none now save whatever its national conventions elaborate to fit such presidential candidates as Greeley, Hancock or Cleveland, and subject to quadrennial change and mystification Once 'states rights and the resolutions of 98 were in the forefront of the democratic creed but all this has vanished, and no one now pretends to fear national invasion of the rights of any state Another ringing article of their creed was hard money, Bentonian gold instead of paper money which they denounced as being made only of "rags and lampblack." Strange to say there is hardly anything now that can be invented for circulation too cheap or too soft and risky for the major part of the party The time it has been when the party was wont to denounce all internal improvements as unconstitutional but now no appropriations for such works appear too extravagant to find elastic support in a democratic house of representatives The party once claimed as its patent of superiority the equal rights and privileges of all men but in eleven states such rights and privileges are denied and refused to millions of American citizens by those who masquerade and aim to dominate under the name of the democratic party The party, forgetting that it is itself, as the sole author of the Rebellion, the sole cause of the extraordinary necessity for the great increase of revenue puts forth the banner of "revenue reform " under which it covertly battles for free trade but quivers and recoils from any deep cut of tariff duties on Louisiana sugar, on South Carolina rice on Pennsylvania iron, on Tennessee marble on North Carolina peanuts or on Florida oranges being largely products of some democratic districts, and districts therefore, dangerous to touch with free trade reform and inclined to revolt. Once the democratic party was wont to declare and repeat that "the executive power has increased was increasing and ought to be diminished," but in spite of President Cleveland's many frantic vetoes, in spite of his appointments without the advice and consent of the senate of ministers (minus the title) to negotiate treaties in spite of his attempts to govern congress by giving or withholding executive favors in order to effect the repeal of all duties on wool, and to prevent the repeal of the internal tax on tobacco, the party made no protest against the undue exercise of extraordinary executive power which seems to have reached a growth not less colossal than that under the administration of General Jackson when Calhoun denounced the democratic party as bound together by the cohesive power of public plunder " To secure a re-election besides his reported financial contribution, the president set forth in his annual message his free trade political sentiments, which had they been previously known, would undoubtedly have defeated his first election As a candidate for a third time he may have the support of the New York Tammany society, but with no vehement adherents elsewhere

HIGH-PRESSURE AGE.

From the New York Record

Very aptly has this century been called the high pressure age In no period of the world's history did men live so fast as they do now By fast" life is not meant exclusively dissipation but rapidity of execution of whatever is taken in hand—that hurry and bustle for which Americans have been so truly noted, that to-day the business or professional man scarcely allows himself proper time for eating and sleeping

This coupled with late hours sedentary habits, unbridled indulgence in the passions of youth and the excesses of maturer years, has given rise to a catalogue of diseases, mental nervous and sexual which if not promptly and radically counteracted will not only destroy the vigor and manhood of the present generation but further than this superinduce beyond a doubt a complete degeneracy of those who come after us. Fortunately however medical science has of late years made most rapid progress—no more striking instance of which can be cited than the system of electro-magnetic treatment as practiced by Drs Darrin

These physicians make a specialty of treating these diseases by this common sense and logical system of electro-magnetic applications which avoids stomach drugging and bears directly on the parts affected and have given the subject their closest thought and study They have been successful when all others have failed in giving vigor to the shattered constitution and relief to those who have become unfitted to perform the duties and the obligations of life

Those needing the advice of honorable and reliable medical men would do well to apply at their consultation rooms where every information will be afforded and consultation may be had free of charge

The doctors have had a wonderful record of success in the past few years, testimonials by the thousand affording convincing proof of the efficacy of their system of treatment.

Drs. Darrin's Place of Business.

Dr Darrin can be consulted free at 235 Fifth street corner of Main Portland Office hours from 10 to 4 o'clock daily, evenings, 7 to 8 Sundays 10 to 12. All curable chronic diseases, loss of manhood, blood taints, syphilis gleet, gonorrhœa, stricture, spermatorrhœa, seminal weakness, or loss of desire of sexual power, in man or woman, catarrh and deafness, are confidentially and successfully treated. Cures of private diseases guaranteed, and never published in the papers Most cases can receive home treatment after a visit to the doctors office. Inquiries answered and circulars sent free.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, TUESDAY, JULY 9.

CAPRICIOUS HUMANITY.

Governor Lowry, of Mississippi, under date of July 1, issued a proclamation from which we make the following extract:

> To the Sheriffs, Constables, and All Other Police Officers of the State of Mississippi:
>
> WHEREAS, It has become a matter of notoriety that certain persons, called John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain, from distant states, intend on some near day, and in defiance of law and morals, to engage in prize fighting;
>
> * * * * * *
> Now, therefore, I, Robert Lowry, governor, in the name and by the authority of the state of Mississippi, sensible of the wickedness, brutality, and demoralizing influence of such crime, call upon you by your oaths of office to use all vigilance and endeavor to prevent the commission thereof within your respective counties by promptly apprehending all persons engaging or being about to engage therein, as well as their aiders and abettors, and deal with them as the law directs.

This proclamation by Governor Lowry is creditable to his humanity and his respect for law and order, but the strange thing is that the humanity of the governors of both Mississippi and Louisiana, their disposition to inflexibly enforce the law, is limited to the white race. Since 1866 there has not been a single election held in Louisiana or Mississippi that has not been disfigured by scenes of murder, riot and outrage that cast utterly into the shade the barbarities of a prize fight. In no case have the governors of Louisiana or Mississippi interfered to prevent the commission of these outrages even by the denunciation, through a proclamation, of the designs of these architects of political murder in advance of execution; in no case after execution of these outrages have the authors been proclaimed and a reward offered for their arrest. In other words, the governors of Louisiana and Mississippi no more officially concern themselves about the murder, the mutilation, the torture or exile of a black republican at the South than they do about the shooting of an alligator, or the catching of tarpon? The black man is considered entirely outside the pale of a Christian civilization.

Governor Lowry and Governor Nicholls seem to be sensible that a prize fight is a brutalizing and demoralizing public spectacle, and yet they do not seem to understand that the scenes of murder and riot, which disfigure every important election, are far more inhuman and inexcusably barbarous in their influence than the spectacle of a slugging match. The fact is, that no matter what may be the negro's legal rights he may be murdered or expelled from the South without exciting any remonstrance on the part of the ruling class, speaking through the governor. Two white ruffians cannot make a slugging match either in Louisiana or Mississippi without an appeal by proclamation from the governor to the military and civic authorities to cause their arrest, while the murder of a dozen negroes in an election riot would not be thought worthy of an official investigation.

The South is orthodox in its theology, Christian in its official protection of the white democracy from the demoralizing invasion of Northern ruffians seeking a prize fight, but the South is utterly indifferent to the subversion of the freedom of elections by the periodical murder or expulsion of the black republican voter from her coasts. It is perfectly clear that state protection of the equal rights of man, irrespective of color or previous condition of servitude, is unknown at the South.

ELLENSBURGH'S CALAMITY.

Ellensburgh, though not suffering so great a loss as did Seattle has met with one relatively quite as severe. The heaviest or at least the heavier losers in Seattle were men of wealth, who, though their losses were great, were by no means reduced to poverty by the fire. The residence portion escaped the visitation of calamity almost entirely, while many of the homes of Ellensburgh were destroyed. Then, too relief came promptly to Seattle, while in the case of Ellensburgh benevolence has moved slowly. This is not surprising as the people have had two relief funds, that of Johnstown and Seattle constantly before them soliciting contribution for several weeks.

That Ellensburgh needs help and needs it as badly as Seattle, is apparent from the extent and nature of the disaster that has overtaken her. A much smaller sum than that which has been sent to Seattle will supply the needs created by this latest disaster, but it should be given with the generous promptness that characterizes true benevolence, and "saves the offense of charitable."

The courage of the people is admirable, and the future of their city is assured. They are not of those who coax prosperity in a languid, half-hearted way, but of those who compel its presence by persistent, intelligent, enterprising endeavor. They need help to get upon their feet again; that is all. Portland will respond, of course, and action in the premises should not be tardy.

"WHAT DO I OWE THEM."

It is reported that just after the fire started at Ellensburgh a gambler, who was standing regarding it complacently, was asked why he did not help the citizens. "What do I owe them?" he said. "What have they ever done for me that I should help save their property?"

This is not a difficult conundrum to answer. If that gambler should become "dead broke," and a sick pauper without friends, he would owe Ellensburgh his support at the almshouse and his hospital expenses; if he should be assaulted or robbed he would owe the protection of his life and property to the local courts; if he was made the subject of an unjust prosecution he would owe his liberty to these same local courts. There is no legal protection for life, liberty and property that a gambler does not enjoy in common with the rest of the community. The whole community is taxed to support a government which guards a gambler's rights as carefully as it does the rights of his victim; it takes as good care of Mr. Rook as it does of Mr. Pigeon; of the plucker and the sucker as it does of the plucked and the sucked, and if the gamblers of Ellensburgh have as complete control of the local police as they do in Portland they will owe more to its local government than any other class of citizens, as they get more complete protection for their rights and immunity for their crimes than any other class. A gambler, who is a non-producer, and is permitted to practice his nefarious calling without serious interruption, certainly owes a good deal to the community that protects him in spite of his lawlessness and worthlessness.

COLOR IN EDUCATION.

A scene which a quarter of a century ago would have been impossible will be witnessed in Nashville this month. It will be the meeting, on terms of equality, of thousands of educators, white and colored, in a national teachers' convention. Opinions have adjusted themselves to events in the last quarter of a century to a degree that William Lloyd Garrison himself could scarcely have deemed possible regarding the rights and privileges of the colored people in the United States; yet race prejudice in the South dies hard, if that may be said to die which revives at the slightest excuse for its existence.

Twenty-five years ago the intimation of an intent to seat colored teachers in a body of this kind in a Southern city would have been met by the lofty scorn of the Southern people. While it is certain that a large number of this class of educators will present themselves before the Nashville convention this month and be courteously seated, it is presumptuous to allege that their welcome will on all hands be a cordial one. Tolerance is, however, a great point gained in this direction, as great a concession, perhaps, as could reasonably be expected of the Southern people within the century that witnessed the abolition of slavery. Significant in this connection is the fact that, while the people of Nashville have been exceedingly cordial in the invitation and welcome extended to the teachers of the North, it has been deemed advisable to specify concerning the treatment—which it is expected that colored teachers will receive in the convention, and a local committee on "colored people" has been appointed, with instructions to manage this somewhat delicate branch of the hospitable part of the association carefully and justly, avoiding as far as possible, offense in so doing. And while the old question, "Do you want your daughter to marry a nigger?" will scarcely be asked of those who insist that in this convention individual intelligence, merit and culture shall be the standard of equality, it is evident, from the very effort made to insure fair treatment, that the spirit that originated the old indignant and irrelevant inquiry is still ripe, protesting not the less hotly because silently, against equality on a basis of intelligence that ignores the color of the skin.

MOTOR FOR MARION COUNTY.

Salem men are developing energy and enterprise and the town is growing as a consequence. Perhaps the most important thing now in view is a scheme of the Marion County Improvement Company, an organization of well-known men resident there. Their design is to conduct a narrow gauge motor line from Salem to Silverton on which trains will run hourly to carry passengers, with a capacity also to transport freight necessary. It is not far from Silverton to good timber in the foothills and the road would naturally divide at Silverton and a branch go up Silver creek and another up the Abiqua.

The company is taking options for purchase of land lying along the line. Several routes are being surveyed. The farmers are aware of the value of the enterprise but place their lands at the command of the company at fair rates. The road can be constructed and equipped for $125,000 and contractors offer to build a narrow gauge track at $8,000 a mile with its equipment complete. A motor passenger train will make the trip in an hour and a quarter including stoppages which will be frequent, as it will run like a street car and stop whenever the bell rings or wherever a person is waiting to take the train.

If the company can command means to build and to purchase the adjacents farms it will be a paying investment. The intention is to sell the land in small tracts, and build up a population to patronize the road, thus converting the intervening country into a continuous village. Since giving up the postoffice at Salem, General W. H. O'Neil has devoted his attention to this scheme. He presides over the temporary organization and W. H. Byars is secretary. Both are confident that the enterprise will prove successful.

This road will connect Salem with the finest portion of Marion county and a district equal to anything Oregon contains. Even far-famed Yamhill cannot show any country more pleasing in appearance or more fertile and productive than Howell prairie, through which this road must pass and the Waldo hills that adjoin it. For the whole distance the country is high prairie and no richer soil or more productive region exists. It is well adapted to fruit-growing as well as grain farming. Those interested hope to see the road in operation by the first of November, 1889.

CALIFORNIA PARASITES.

A few days ago a gentleman who bought some peaches in this city discovered that they were infested by a worm as bad as the codling moth. One peach was penetrated to the stone, and as that was split it was found the insect's leavings had filled it. This was the Hale's early variety and several in a half dozen were thus infested. The worm had cut the skin and eaten its channel into the peach as the codling worm does in the apple.

It is not possible to enforce a quarantine on California fruit, and all the time we are receiving installments of the kind to propagate here and infest our orchards. We may hope that the climate will not suit them, but then again it may, and before long our trees will be infested and our beautiful orchards laid waste.

As little has been said of wormy peaches, it was hoped that this fruit would go free of all such pests, but it seems by actual proof that the ripe peach has a worm that penetrates and spoils it. The only way to prevent the ravages of these insect pests is for all orchardists who care to preserve their fruit to use every reasonable means to protect themselves and depend on no other means than their own efforts.

Although the assessment valuation of property in New York city is shown to be $50,000,000 more this year than last, yet the state has had to appropriate $75,000 in order that the poor people of the metropolis may get a chance to wash themselves. The money is to be expended in the construction of "a free public bath, with soap, towels and other appliances." In the meantime the free bath house of Portland has failed to materialize although the summer is half over. The architect employed cannot possibly think of drawing plans for a $1200 structure and only about two-thirds of that amount has been raised by the committee appointed to raise the fund. When the next session of the legislature is held in 1891 we will ask the state to appropriate enough to help build our bath house for us.

The vindication of the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Louisiana is complete. Two companies of militia were ordered out by proclamation of Governor Nicholls to prevent the Sullivan-Kilrain fight from taking place within the state. Though the fight came off according to the widely advertised programme, it was conducted so slyly that only a few thousand people got to see it. But seventy-two rounds were fought which accounts for the fact that the troops did not get there in time to interfere and stop the battle. Both men were arrested, however, just as soon as the constabulary of Louisiana could lay hands upon them after the fight and no doubt a fine of at least $10 will be imposed upon each of the combatants.

Chicago, with a population twice as large as Boston, gave out of the public library to readers last year 1,114,964 volumes against 1,013,847 for Boston. It is reasoned that as heretofore the Boston library led all others in the country in extent of patronage, the literary center is moving westward. Portland, in proportion to her size, can discount the above figures 50 per cent, which proves that the literary center has jumped away over Chicago and located near our handsome high school building.

The worst is about to come upon the long-suffering public of San Francisco. Sarah Althea, of Sharon infamy, is about to review the Hill-Sharon case on the rostrum. There seems to be no escape from this persistently pernicious young woman, who, lost to all sense of shame, delights in parading her vile intrigues with a decrepit roue before the world and mocks decency in the proceeding by claiming that there was a semblance of "marriage" between them. Fortunately there can be nothing new connected with the case to bring out in a "lecture," since the depths of degradation were sounded and their contents brought to the surface when it was before the courts. It is a pity, however, that anything that was a stench in the nostrils of decency when fresh should be brought to the stifling atmosphere of midsummer when so disgustingly stale as are the details of this case.

The art of painting has not, as a general rule, proved very remunerative. Millet, thirty years ago, received $600 for his splendid work "The Angelus." A few days ago in the city of Paris, the famous artistic creation was sold for $110,600. A little of this amount might well be used to supply the wants of the artist's widow who is poor and needy. Art pays more in these progressive times, but the artist seldom reaps the reward due his talents. The trader gets the gold, the painter the fame; with the former one can buy more bread.

A rifle that wasn't loaded caused the death of Mrs. Collins near Albany, Sunday morning. There are no new features in the story. A fearless young woman, a guest at Mrs. Collins's house, was handling the weapon, drew back the hammer and pulled the trigger with the usual result. Death was instantaneous, a husband and three small children mourn and the perpetrator is "overwhelmed" with remorse." The moral—but then everybody is familiar with story and moral alike and only await a new chapter in the one to recall and forget to apply the other.

The Michigan legislature recently passed a bill fixing passenger fares on the railroads of the state at 2½ and 3 cents a mile, according to the earnings of the road. This is low enough. A man who wants to travel any cheaper than that should be forced to walk and carry his knapsack, and thus learn to appreciate the advantages of modern institutions, that, though they demand pay for the service get him in on time or wreck him in the attempt.

Humanity—in a jailer is one thing; weak compliance with the entreaties of a criminal or "his wife" to an extent that defeats, or may defeat the ends of justice is quite another. The former is worthy of all commendation; the latter trenches so closely upon collusion with the criminal in his desire to escape the just penalty of his crime that the practical public may be excused for not discerning the difference between the two.

The deaf inhabitant has evidently been abroad in the region of Chicago lately. Six of these unfortunate individuals have been killed recently on railroads running out of that city, and with but thirteen days between the death of the first and the last. And still the problem of why the deaf man chooses the railroad track for his promenade ground is unanswered.

The filth and decay of Naples in latter years has caused so much disease that it has become necessary to destroy 17,000 houses in that city, at an expense of $20,000,000. If some of our neighboring cities could have seen the wisdom of tearing down the shanties in the business center, the fires that have visited Seattle, Hailey and Ellensburgh might not have been so destructive and sweeping.

London is the greatest theatrical city in the world. It has sixty theaters, and 500 music halls, and provides entertainment each night for 325,000 people. At this rate 100,000,000 people patronize places of amusement in London every year. American negro minstrels are very popular with all classes.

Owing to the great number of anonymous communications received during the past few days THE OREGONIAN finds it necessary to repeat that no notice whatever is taken of such letters; also that it cannot undertake to return rejected manuscripts.

A Chicago prisoner, trying to escape, threw pepper in his jailer's eyes, and was shot dead for his pains. Portland prisoners have a more winning way with them when they desire to take a walk.

Sullivan has thrashed Kilrain, and such a violent contrast of joy in Boston and gloom in Baltimore has not been seen since the fall of Richmond.

[illegible]TLAND AND VICINITY.

[illegible]—The report of the finding of [illegible] body of an infant in the river near the [illegible] works, proved to be true. The body [illegible] by two boys who reported the matter to [illegible]. Mr. Holman went in search of the [illegible] its discovery was reported, but [illegible] the darkness he was unable to find it. [illegible] again yesterday morning with better [illegible]. The body was found in the water about [illegible] below the foot of Lincoln street. It was [illegible] and the head was gone. From ap[illegible] it must have been in the water about a [illegible]. It was taken to the morgue and buried [illegible] cemetery at the county's expense yes[illegible]. A physician gave it as his opin[illegible] the body was that of a still born child. [illegible] investigation will be made, but it is doubtful [illegible] at this stage the owner of the dead in[illegible] be found.

[illegible] of Professor Clayton.—The mortal [illegible] of Professor J. E. Clayton were yesterday [illegible] to the grave, amid a sorrowing con[illegible] friends who in life had loved him well. [illegible] deceased had deservedly attained high rank [illegible] geologist, and his well-known ability and [illegible] not only won for him the confidence [illegible] generally, but capitalists, as well, [illegible] implicit faith in his statements and opin[illegible]. The funeral was held from George H. [illegible] undertaking parlors at 4 o'clock in the [illegible], and the remains were interred in [illegible] cemetery. The scientific world, in the [illegible] of Professor Clayton has lost a man [illegible] place it would be difficult to fill, for he [illegible] interpreter of nature; to him the moun[illegible] valleys were an open book.

Cannery Burned.—A private dispatch from [illegible] to Messrs. Oliver & Clayton, of this city, [illegible] the King County Fish Packing Com[illegible] was totally destroyed by fire about noon [illegible]. The establishment belonged to Messrs. [illegible] & Kirkwood, of Portland. The can[illegible] was located about five miles north of Seattle. [illegible] origin of the fire is not known, and total loss [illegible] be ascertained. There is $18,000 insur[illegible] on the building and contents, which is di[illegible] as follows: Columbia Insurance Company, [illegible] Imperial, $1500; Northwest, $2000; State In[illegible] Company of California, $1000; Ham[illegible] Bremen, $1000; Phœnix of London, $5000; [illegible] company, $2000. This cannery was [illegible] before when it was being built. At [illegible] time there was no insurance.

[illegible] Death of Mrs. Myers.—By the morn[illegible] from Salem yesterday arrived here Mr. [illegible] Myers and wife of that city. Mrs. Myers [illegible] down to assist in nursing her husband's [illegible], Mr. E. Myers, formerly salesman with [illegible] & Burrell, who is very sick, with scarcely [illegible] of his recovery. Mr. H. Myers and wife [illegible] at their brother's residence at 11 o'clock, [illegible] Mr. Myers started to return to [illegible], having important business to attend to. [illegible] after he left the house his wife was [illegible] suddenly ill, and in a few minutes expired [illegible] heart disease. A messenger was dispatched [illegible] her husband, and he was overtaken before he [illegible] the train, and returned with all possible [illegible], but his wife was dead before he reached the house.

[illegible] of a Third Mate.—Friday morning, [illegible] the Astorian, Third Mate Hunter, of the [illegible] Oregon, was found helpless in his state[illegible] at San Francisco. He had been ill for some [illegible]. It was deemed advisable to have him [illegible] to St. Mary's hospital for medical treat[illegible] and care. On the way to the hospital Hun[illegible] expired. Deceased is well-known to seafaring [illegible] on this coast. About five years ago he was [illegible] by a fall in the hold of the Oregon, which [illegible] two or three ribs and affected his lungs. [illegible] is probable that this accident hastened his death. Deceased leaves a wife and five children [illegible] Liverpool, England. He was about 50 years of age and a native of the Shetland islands.

A Favorable Report.—The stockholders of the Arlington mine have just received a report from [illegible] Maryanska, a mining engineer and expert who was sent up some time since to examine the property. The report is a very favorable one, and as the stockholders have every confidence in his ability, they are highly elated with their prospects. Mr. Maryanska is a graduate of the celebrated mining school of Freiburg, Germany, and has had much practical experience in the Bodie mining district. He has examined the Arlington through all its dips, spurs and angles, and has figured up how many millions there are in it, and [illegible] enough to make a homestake for all the stockholders.

About the Close Season.—There is some misunderstanding in regard to the date at which the close season for grouse and pheasants ends this year. Some say it ends as usual on July 15, and others claim that the law was changed by the last legislature and that the birds cannot lawfully be shot till August 1. The latter date is quite early enough and a game dealer said yesterday he would gladly give $50 if no birds were brought in before August 1. A hasty glance through the acts of last session of the legislature discovers no change in the law in regard to birds, so the slaughter of the innocents will probably begin on the 15th.

An Egyptian Relic.—Colonel Frank J. Parker has lately acquired a unique relic in the shape of a ring of Egyptian make which is older than the pyramids or the men who built them. It is a seal ring and has a lot of hieroglyphics on the face which not even the colonel can decipher. A student of Rider Haggard who has just finished "Cleopatra," says he is certain this ring was among the treasures extracted by the Egyptian queen from the mummy of Menkau-re.

Salvation Army.—Great District Demonstration in Portland, Or., July 9, 10, 11 and 12. Brigadier and Mrs. Fielding, Adjutant and Mrs. Parker, [illegible] the Turk, in native costume, and the officers, soldiers and friends from Oregon and Washington. Meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Barracks, 9 Madison street. Friday night in the Tabernacle. For particulars see handbills. Admission 10 cents.

He Will Rebuild.—J. S. Anthony, of Ellensburgh, Wash., in whose grocery store the recent disastrous fire originated, arrived in the city yesterday to purchase a new stock of goods, and to take a look around while a temporary store is being built for him. He says he is going to rebuild, and will move into a new two-story brick building in December.

The Opera Millinery Store, 67 Morrison street, between Third and Fourth, continue their clearance sale for the rest of this month. The entire stock of spring and summer goods will be closed out regardless of cost, as they will not carry any stock over. Call and be convinced.

Mistake in the Name.—The Oregonian of yesterday contained a list of teachers who were elected to teach in the public schools of Albina. Among the list appeared the name of Miss Eva M. Brown. This was a mistake, for the young lady's name is Miss Annie M. Brannan.

Off to the Hot Springs.—The following-named persons left last night for Banff hotel, Banff Hot Springs, on the line of the Canadian Pacific, to spend the hot season: T. D. Woolley, Dr. Churchman, Dr. Waples, L. G. Clarke, Miss J. [illegible], Miss Cummings.

Connor Reinstated.—William Connor was yesterday morning reinstated to his old position as deputy superintendent of streets. He assumes his duties at once and for the present will act as superintendent of construction on the Johnson-creek sewer.

Complimentary Benefit.—A complimentary benefit will be given to Mrs. C. J. Graham, an invalid, at Nonpareil hall, corner First and Madison streets, this evening. Considering the worthy object, there will, no doubt, be a large attendance.

A Short Catch.—Canners claim that the Columbia river salmon pack of 1889 will be a short one, and every indication points that way. Even a "July run" wouldn't bring the pack up now to anything like the figures of former years.—Astorian.

Real Estate Exchange.—An adjourned meeting of the exchange will be held this evening at [illegible] Stark street at 8 o'clock, to perfect an organization. All real estate men are invited to attend.

IN AND AROUND CHEHALIS.

Railroad Matters—Protection Against Fire—Crops—Orchards—Berries—Hops, Etc.

[illegible] Chehalis correspondent sends the following:

The matter of right of way for the Port Town[illegible] railroad has been closed with the representatives of that company, and the Union [illegible] by the citizens of Chehalis entering into a [illegible] to provide the builders of the road with all the land they may need without cost. This peac[illegible] settled matters, and the surveyors are expected to reach Chehalis to-day with the extension of the survey from where it terminated near Centralia some months ago. As heretofore mentioned, it is expected that from Chehalis to Port[illegible] trackage will be secured over the Northern [illegible]. The recent fires in other towns have scared the Chehalis people into doing something for fire protection. To this end the scope of the flume company [illegible] enlarged so as to make the furnish[illegible] for all purposes in the town one of [illegible] fire department. The town carries a large amount of insurance, much of which is in the hands of Portland agencies.

The biggest fishing yarn recorded for the season is that told by E. L. Young and Sheriff Deyeler. They went fishing on the Fourth and make affidavit to a catch of 785 trout, all from the south fork of the Newaukam.

The crops about Chehalis are excellent, notwithstanding the dry weather. The hop vines especially seem to be lengthening by the jump, and are full of hops already. This crop will be immense, and the acreage has been greatly extended. Orchards are in fine bearing, while berries have been and are yet uncommonly plentiful. This condition of affairs exists throughout the Chehalis Valley.

One of the enterprising men of this region is John T. Browning, who owns an extensive farm, and is a cheese maker of more than local note, the products of his factory being in demand with Portland dealers. Mr. Browning has been paying attention also to orcharding, and has not only plenty of fruit, but has a dozen or more fine walnut trees in bearing. He says there's money in it.

FEDERATED TRADES ASSEMBLY.

List of Delegates—Officers Elected—The Boycotts—The State of the Trade—Vote of Thanks.

The regular meeting of the Federated Trades Assembly was held at their hall last night, Captain John O'Brien in the chair; H. C. Hincken, secretary. The following unions sent delegates to serve during the next six months:

United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, union No. 50—C. Baumberger, B. C. Failing, E. Squires and J. Deeds.

Laborers' Protective Union—William Carr, Thomas Gillen and John Doran.

Journeyman Tailors' Protective Union—E. Hylund and P. H. Hephner.

Multnomah Typographical Union No. 58—Miss Ada E. Coburn, John O'Brien, Albert Tozier and George Hawkins.

Bakers' Union, No. 65—H. Hagenbercher.

The majority of the unions composing the assembly elect their delegates annually, therefore their delegates hold over.

The credentials of the above named delegates were presented and accepted, and the delegates seated.

The chair announced that at this meeting the election of officers for the next six months would be held, and called upon the officers for their reports.

Miss Coburn, treasurer, read her report of the receipts and expenses for her term of office. The report was received and accepted.

H. C. Hincken, secretary, asked for and was given further time to give his report.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The following officers were then elected: Captain John O'Brien, president; J. Martin Ready, Iron Moulders' Union, vice-president; C. E. Hylund, treasurer (Miss Coburn declined); W. M. Hart, Cigarmakers' Union, statistical secretary; C. Baumberger, recording and corresponding secretary, and Thomas Gillen, sergeant-at-arms.

Executive committee—A. A. Yartlett, Brotherhood of Painters' and Decorators' Union; William Carr; Mr. Phillips, of the Cigarmakers' Union; P. F. Heppner, H. Hagenbercher, B. C. Failing, Charles Frost, of the Stonecutters' Union, and George Hawkins.

Committee on organization—Albert Tozier, John Doran and W. M. Hart.

On motion the officers elected were seated.

C. Baumberger, of the Carpenters' Union, announced in a feeling manner the death of ex-Delegate G. Baumgarten.

Several unions made favorable reports of the state of the trade. The Bakers' Union made a report stating that the boycott on the German Baking Company was not well sustained. The several unions were urged to enforce it with fines, and a list of restaurants using the bread called for.

A motion was entertained on the recommendation of a volunteer organizing committee to lift the boycott on Weinhard's beer; the motion was lost.

BUILDING TRADES LEAGUE.

A delegate stated that some members of the assembly were organizing a building trades league. The scheme was generally denounced, as its purposes was designed to weaken the assembly. C. Baumberger, of the carpenters' union, stated that while his union was in favor of the measure, they were also in favor of the Federated Trades assembly, and that they would be loyal to both. Kilfether and Dooney spoke against the league.

Under the head of good and welfare of the organization, Kilfether spoke strongly in favor of unification of unions into federated trades assemblies; he also gave his reason for declining any office—he has a contract, and while holding a contract he would be an employer; he did not think that men holding contracts should influence trades union legislation. Michael Dooney retired as a delegate from the Laborers' Protective union and made remarks appropriate to the occasion.

A vote of thanks was called for Miss Ada Coburn, who has been treasurer two terms; it was amended to include all the officers and unanimously adopted.

The assembly adjourned to meet Monday evening, July 22.

Mr. Frank Owen, of Chehalis, is in the city on business.

GREAT : CRASH : IN : PRICES

Once more we come before the public with one of our great sales, and it shall be our earnest endeavor to make this, our semi-annual clearance sale for the year 1889, a sale to be long remembered by our many patrons. You all know what to expect at one of our "clean-ups;" IT MEANS STACKS OF GOODS FOR LITTLE MONEY. Any one that has ever been in our establishment knows that we are always short of room. Our immense patronage compels us to keep our stores literally packed with goods, and at the close of a season the main problem to solve is how to make room for the next season's stock. There is only one way, and that is, clear out the goods on hand and make way for the new. Price is no object; room we must have. Away back in the commencement of 1889 we arrived at the conclusion that it was to be a year of great commercial activity, and commenced to map out our plans for an immense business, and we are satisfied that we have builded well, and that the coming season will be one series of successful business transactions. We have import orders placed in Paris, Berlin, London and Yokohama, and mill orders for home manufactured goods. We have several car loads of these goods now en route, and it is imperative that we have room for them. We will offer you unparalleled inducements during this sale in every department of our establishment. We mean just what we say. Millinery Goods, Fancy Goods, Notions, Gloves, Hosiery, Corsets, Underwear, Dress Goods, Silks, Velvets, Cloths, Linens, White Goods, Domestics, Summer Wraps, Shawls, Rubber Goods, Ladies' Gentlemen's and Children's Shoes, Men's, Youths' and Boys' Clothing, Hats and Caps, Furnishing Goods, Trunks and Traveling Bags. All will be included and the knife put into prices deep—no mere scratch, but a deep cut that can be seen by every body.

PORTLAND, TUESDAY, JULY 9.

THE FUTURE OF THE NEGRO

The gloomy view of the future of the negro enunciated by Philip Bruce is vigorously combated in the North American Review for July by William Matthews, who argues that "the comparative mental weakness, the asserted indolence and servility, the degradation and vices of the negro are defects and faults that belong to his habits rather than to his nature, and are owing, not to his physical or mental constitution, but to the grievous hardships to which he has been exposed and the obstacles everywhere thrown in the way of his advancement."

Dr Livingstone, the famous African traveler, is quoted in support of this view as is Prichard author of "Physical History of Mankind" who says

The first impulse to civilization was late in reaching the interior of Africa, owing to local circumstances which are easily understood but when it had once taken place, an improvement resulted which is perhaps proportional to the early progress of human culture in other more favored regions of the world."

The condition of the Southern colored man is far more hopeful than that of the free Germans in the first centuries of the Christian era or that of the Saxon peasant in the time of Henry the Second, when he was as absolutely dependent on the will of his lord and as incapable of holding property as the American negro before emancipation Two centuries ago the population of Russia was in a condition far more hopeless than that of the negro to-day Peter the Great a man of genius was nevertheless a far more licentious drunken and cruel despot than any negro that ever ruled Hayti or San Domingo A Southern Democrat" said in the Century for January, 1885

The negroes came to this country barbarians They were savages, but they were not savages when freedom found them out On the contrary it may be said that in the history of the world there has never before been an instance where a race of people only 250 years removed from a condition of abject barbarism was so closely related to civilization as were the negroes of the South when they were made free.

The negro has far more knowledge and culture to-day than our ancestors had 500 years after Christ. It is not denied that the negro is mentally inferior to the white man but he is susceptible of high improvement

In 1871 the commissioners appointed by the state of Georgia attended the annual examination at Atlanta university In their report signed by ex Governor J E Brown, they declare that at every step of the examination they were impressed with the fallacy of the popular idea (which, in common with thousands of other men a majority of them had previously entertained) that the members of the African race were not capable of a high grade of intellectual culture

The rigid tests to which the classes in algebra and geometry and in Latin and Greek were subjected unequivocally demonstrated that, under judicious training and with persevering study there are many members of the African race who can attain a high grade of intellectual culture They prove that they can master intricate problems in mathematics and fully comprehend the construction of difficult passages in the classics

The negro race has produced enough men of superior ability in mathematics medicine, war law eloquence, sculpture history and literature to justify great hope for their future. General Wolseley says that the negro regiments are the best fighting material in the Egyptian army, and the blackest page of Mr Bruce s denunciation of the negro does not represent him as ignorant as ferocious as utterly worthless as the 'poor whites' of certain portions of West Virginia East Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina On this point the New York Tribune says

The county of Logan in West Virginia, is the abiding place of the Hatfields and McCoys, whose bloody vendettas have for years shocked the whole country There is a region inhabited altogether by white men and these white men exhibit a lack of moral sense far beyond anything that can be seen in the worst negro communities There is no crime however atrocious which these savage mountaineers, have not committed within the past ten years. Yet no one will contend that the inhabitants of what has been called 'Murder land' are incapable of progress Moreover these white men have all the shiftlessness, indolence uncleanliness, lack of pride in themselves, and want of ambition which Mr Bruce regards as demonstrating the hopelessness of civilizing the negro We might go further, and show that not many centuries ago the white races which are now most civilized were as backward as the Southern negroes of to-day, in all essentials, and what is perhaps still more significant that their condition has been practically stationary for long periods. How long have the negroes been in a position to improve themselves on the other hand Less than twenty five years have elapsed since the close of the rebellion, and the first decade of that time was a period of confusion and experiment What race has there ever been capable in so short a time of rising above the influence of thousands of years of savagery, concluded by two centuries of slavery?

THE PEACH BORER

A correspondent of an Eastern paper writes from Central New York,

Twelve years ago in this portion of Central New York peaches grew in great abundance, and now it is seldom a farmer has enough for his own uses The old trees have mostly died out and new set trees survive but a short time The peach tree borer is to blame An authority avers that by raising a mound of earth a foot high about the stem of the tree will prevent the borer producing fly from laying her eggs in the roots Another method is to place a narrow box about the tree and the fly will not descend into it and for young trees just set, a section of drain tile could be passed down over them from the top but any of these would fail if the trees were already infested as many of them are when they come from the nursery It is believed that by getting sound trees and adopting some one of these methods for protection successful peach-growing could be restored to long reaches of the country

The peach borer is if anything worse on plum and prunes trees in Oregon than on the peach itself and has done and will do very great damage to both peach and prune orchards unless some means be taken to prevent From observation the present season we judge that the fly is now in season and laying its eggs The worm hatches from eggs laid on the body of the tree an inch or two above the ground and immediately works its way to the roots by digging a channel through the bark from where it hatched It then gets under the soil and commences to bore into the root of the tree There is an exuding of gum in consequence of this drilling of small holes and the small worm will be found between this gum and the root After a time it goes in under the bark and digs channels up and down, sometimes boring to the heart of the wood often circling the body of the tree or its main roots and at last girdling and killing the tree

THE OREGONIAN has told all this before but the importance of the subject justifies further attention All the peach and plum orchards in Oregon will be destroyed if these borers once infest them As we have said paper can be wrapped around the base of the tree and the bottom edge covered with dirt. That will usually last one season if well tied on Another way to keep them off is to paint the base of the tree and roots close to it, with a mixture made of equal quantities of soft soap fish oil whale oil soap and sulphur, boiled in an iron kettle and well mixed Use a whitewash brush and cover the roots at the surface and the trunk one foot above the ground with the paint This mixture will last two seasons those say who have tried it

When ready to do this, first uncover the large roots and look for borers They can be traced by the hollow sound of the bark where they have worked Dig the channel and follow them until you find and kill them "Dig them out and then paint the tree, or wrap with paper and replace the earth dug away. This is a sure way and if well done every two years your peach and prune trees will be apt to live Last year this was done to 6000 trees in an orchard and borers were found in trees 15 years old and ten inches in diameter The peach borer is far the most dangerous for the peach and to plum or prune trees they are very destructive. Ten years ago we saw where they had destroyed a large orchard of Italian prunes in the vicinity of Albany and now they are spreading far and must be more deadly

There is no better evidence of the marvelous growth and prosperity of Spokane Falls than the appearance of the leading paper of that city The Review which has come to us in a new dress, printed for the first time from stereotype plates and on a new Goss perfecting press capable of turning out 24 000 complete papers every hour It is now an eight page, fifty six column paper, has the associated press dispatches and a large special service its editorials are timely and evince good judgment and the local and special articles which meet the eye show careful work by trained men The Review has a true metropolitan appearance and the rapid improvement which it has made in the past year would be wonderful in any other city than Spokane Falls There it has but kept pace with the growth of the city

Before the war the South was the land of chivalry, and labor even in the management of an estate was considered a disgrace to a gentleman Northern enterprise looking to practical rewards showed a spirit of materialism, that was everywhere frowned upon But the tables are now turned Coal and iron have been discovered in that section in rich quantities, and those who formerly claimed to despise mere money getting are engaged in the process with a vim and push worthy of the veriest Yankee The quicker the South develops her natural resources the sooner may we hope for a change in Southern political methods

M'DOW'S ACQUITTAL.

St Louis Globe Democrat The acquittal of Dr McDow charged with the murder of Captain Dawson, will be regarded everywhere as a judicial outrage Verdicts of this kind are responsible for all the lynchings that occur in this country

Pittsburg Dispatch The acquittal of Mc Dow the slayer of Captain Dawson at Charleston, is the end of a cause celebre which follows the regular rule of South Carolina criminal jurisprudence, that no white man is ever hanged for murder

Cleveland Leader The acquittal of Dr McDow of Charleston S C, of the murder of Editor Dawson of the News and Courier of that city demonstrates that human life is not valued very highly in the South From this distance the verdict is looked upon as a terrible outrage upon justice

Cincinnati Enquirer Does every one remember the intense indignation in Charleston S C over the murder of Editor Dawson? Ah well, the jury yesterday acquitted his murderer Thus everything is made satisfactory The indignation was quite pleasing to those who loved Dawson, and the acquittal is eminently satisfactory to the man who killed him

Philadelphia Press Dr McDow s ingenious defense will be recognized as exactly in line with the defense the famous Rufus Choate advised Professor Webster to make when he was on trial in Boston for the murder of Dr Parkman Professor Webster refused the great lawyer's counsel, and he suffered the penalty for his crime It is interesting to know that Dr McDow escapes by adopting the course Professor Webster discarded

It Was "Disappointing "

Milwaukee Sentinel.

The reputation for oratory achieved by our late minister to St James, Mr E J Phelps as an after dinner speaker in England was hardly sustained by him in his recent address before the Phi Beta Kappa society at Harvard The Boston Herald admits that the address was 'disappointing " According to that journal it contained good passages but was wanting in logical continuity ' while some of the ideas advanced were unsound and unworthy of the author This means we infer unworthy of the ideal which Boston has formed of the author

It has been the fad of a little clique of Harvard professors and their adherents of late years to worship at the political shrine of Grover Cleveland Any person approved by that great statesman they have been ready to accept as a paragon Phelps was appointed by Cleveland as minister to England and Harvard therefore hastened to pay him homage at the first opportunity That he was a Copperhead during the war and an enemy and reviler of Abraham Lincoln, only increased the pleasure which it gave the Harvard clique to show him consideration since that they felt in so doing they were giving proof of their independence and non partisanship

ALASKA'S MINERAL WEALTH

Development of Mines Located Near Juneau.

The Nowell Gold Mining Company—The Takou Consolidated—The Webster Property—Archie Campbell—The Eastern Alaska Company.

Juneau Mining Record

About one mile and a half from Juneau the Nowell Gold Mining Company is busily engaged in preparatory work on its tramway This company have erected a number of buildings, and have a force of men employed building stations for tramways ore bins, grading for millsite and otherwise preparing for extensive operations in the near future, and the work of erecting a ten stamp mill will soon be commenced To complete the work now in hand by this company will require an expenditure of more than $100 000

A short distance from the Nowell Gold Company's works is the ten stamp mill of the Takou Consolidated Mining Company This mill was built last season by a Seattle company and has been in operation but a short time during the present season It is said that they have some very good rock in their claim and with proper management will be a success and will yield the owners a handsome profit

The Webster five stamp mill, a few hundred yards further up the creek is also lying idle, but will be started up later on The Webster property made a good showing last year, and the mill crushed some very good rock The quartz claim lies on the opposite side of the creek from the mill and the rock is picked a short distance The mill has a water power sufficient to furnish power for a plant many times the size of the one now used, and as the claim is developed if necessity requires it, the mill can easily be enlarged

On what is commonly known as the Fuller First quartz location Archie Campbell is running an arastra grinding from 1000 to 2000 pounds of rock per day Mr Campbell is an old miner and a good judge of pay rock therefore, owing to the primitive mode of working, he only works his best rock Much of the rock in this claim contains a large quantity of galena which cannot be worked by this process, yet the galena contains a good percentage of gold This he also separates from that which he runs through the arastra, and will ship it below to be treated by the smelting process

The Eastern Alaska Mining and Milling Company is erecting a 10 stamp mill for the purpose of working the property of the Gold Mountain Mining Company, consisting of what is known as the Jumbo group of mines A large boarding house has been erected and is now occupied by the employes of the company The work of excavating for a foundation has been completed and the mill framed and is now ready to be put together It is the intention to have the mill in perfect running order by the first of September and judging from the progress made thus far it is safe to say that it will be ready by that time, if not before The mill will be about 4000 feet from the ore body, and for the transportation of the ore to the mill a Hudson tramway will be constructed the material for which arrived on the Elder The tramway route has been cleared and is ready for the work of construction to commence A tunnel is being run in on the ledge and pay rock is being taken out The vein is from fifteen to twenty feet in width and shows some excellent looking quartz which contains a considerable sprinkling of free gold The ore also contains a good percentage of galena which carries gold

The Lake Mountain Mining Company operating in the Silver Bay district, near Sitka has executed a trust deed to J J P Odell of Chicago, for $75,000 This amount will be used as a working capital for the Lucky Chance mine and to pay off the company's outstanding debt amounting to between $15 000 and $20 000 The instrument was executed the 15th of last April

ALASKA NEWS NOTES

Regarding the alleged vices and immoralities of the citizens of Alaska, the Juneau City Mining Record says

We are now to have ex Governor Swineford's report on Alaska outrages in small doses. The stirring up of this matter again is certainly very unwise and injudicious. The sensational writers of the defamatory articles have had their say and have been quietly rolled into oblivion by the backaction bugs of time as it were and their statements generally discredited by the people and press of the United States The resurrection of the subject will have a tendency to bring them forth with an opportunity to ride again on another sensational literary and fabricated wave It is a well authenticated fact that the greatest outrage perpetrated upon the law abiding citizens of Alaska was by the last administration in sending certain officials to the 'land of the midnight sun '

At the last meeting of the territorial board of education the salaries of the government teachers were reduced to $80 per month. This was done at the suggestion of N R L Dawson, United States commissioner of education at Washington, who paid Alaska a visit some time ago and while there filled up the columns of newspapers with glowing compliments to that part of the world At such a salary it will be difficult to find competent persons to fill the positions

Douglas City is growing rapidly and the citizens there feel that they ought to have a United States deputy marshal The residents of that place think that much lawlessness would be prevented by the presence of an officer of authority The merchants and business men generally have raised $2000 for the construction of a wharf The railroad of the Alaska Gold Company is now in complete running order, and is utilized in transporting mill machinery to be used on the Bear Nest improvements

During the past year the schools of Juneau have progressed satisfactorily and the number of scholars has steadily increased It is thought that the educational facilities will have to be increased, owing to the large numbers of new comers that are settling here who have families

On June 14 the work of building a telephone line from Juneau to the Basin was commenced The distance is a little more than four miles and the line will connect the mill in the Basin with Superintendent Depue's office in Juneau When completed it will be the first telephone in Alaska, and therefore will become a historical event

BACK TO FACE

If my face could only promise
That its color would remain
If my heart were only certain
It would hide the moment s pain
I would meet thee and would greet thee
In the old familiar tone,
And naught should ever show you
The wrong that you have done

If my trembling hands were steady
If my smiles had not all fled,
If my eyes spoke not so plainly
Of the tears they often shed
I would meet you and would greet you
At the old sweet trysting place
And perchance you d deem me happy
If you met me face to face

If the melody of springtide
Awoke no wilder strain
If the autumn s golden [illegible]
Awoke no living pain
I would meet thee and I would greet thee
As years ago we met
Before our hearts were shipwrecked
On the ocean of regret

If my woman s soul were stronger

The love I had for you
But I face not m[illegible]

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The stock market was [illegible] to-day, under the influence of the [illegible] railroad situation, and declines extending [illegible] per cent. were brought about, although [illegible] afterwards a substantial recovery from [illegible] prices. The news of the day was not [illegible] value, but there were more rumors of a [illegible] nature persistently circulated, especially during the forenoon. Almost every member of the Interstate Association was reported as ready to withdraw. The pressure was especially [illegible] against the Union Pacific, St. Paul, Atchison and other grangers, but the rest of the list [illegible] forgotten, and everything traded in felt the pressure more or less. Towards 2 o'clock the [illegible] rallied quite sharply, and in the last hour [illegible] a most decided upward movement in the sugar trust, when it reached the highest point of the day. The general market closed dull, being at the time steady to firm at something better than the lowest figures.

Government bonds have been dull and steady.

NEW YORK MARKET REVIEW.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Commercial circles, as a rule, are satisfied with the outlook of the important half of the year now begun. Abundant agriculture crops are fairly assured, and the fact can be regarded with complacency, as we are well out of the over-trading rut that has been the bane of the trade in many instances during the past season.

Wool is doing well, for probably the largest American clip known. The sales were liberal for a broken week. The buyers' submission to the strong ruling rates helps the interior views, particularly those of speculators who are carrying blocks. There were sales of 275,000 pounds of California spring on private terms, 10,000 pounds of fine old medium territory at 21c, and 40,000 pounds of new at 18c.

So many canned fruits are on the way by rail to be cared for that the buyers will not make ventures for now.

Prunes are sold up close.

Dried fruits are expected to open low this season.

The inhabitants, the medical men of these countries, have spoken in no uncertain tones concerning the efficacy of the great household remedy.

Impure Blood

Is the cause of Boils, Carbuncles, Pimples, Eczema, and cutaneous eruptions of all kinds. There can be no permanent cure for these complaints until the poison is eliminated from the system. To do this thoroughly, the safest and most effective medicine is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Give it a trial.

"For the past twenty-five years I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In my opinion, the best remedial agencies for the cure of all diseases arising from impurities of the blood are contained in this medicine."—G. C. Brock, Druggist, Lowell, Mass.

"My wife was for a long time a sufferer from tumors on the neck. Nothing did her any good until she tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made a complete cure."—W. S. Martin, Burning Springs, W. Va.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

HE IS FIRE COMMISSIONER.

James Lotan Gets the Appointment and Is Unanimously Confirmed.

The Common Council Transacts the Usual Routine Business Last Evening, Besides Certain Special Important Work

There was not so much interest displayed in the meeting of the common council last night, either by the members or the public, as was displayed at either of the two previous meetings this month. The meetings on the 1st and 3d insts. were attended by all the members and a large crowd of spectators, while, when President Woodward let the gavel fall last night, it was found that Castendieck, Forbes, Gerdes and Scoggin were absent. Mayor De Lashmutt went off to Cœur d'Alene several days since, and it was thought he would be back in time for the meeting, but when 8 o'clock arrived and he did not put in an appearance Mr Woodward took the chair and proceeded with the business.

JAMES GETS THERE

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

President Woodward said "At the last meeting of the council an effort was made to elect a fire commissioner. The mayor appointed several persons and several ballots were taken without any one being confirmed. I understood that the meeting was adjourned to this time for the convenience of the mayor. He is not here, therefore I shall make one appointment for fire commissioner and no more, and you can confirm it or not, as you see fit."

He then appointed James Lotan for fire commissioner for a term of three years.

A motion was made to confirm and a ballot being taken, the appointment was confirmed by a unanimous vote.

PROVIDING CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS.

An ordinance was passed providing that the permission granted the Transcontinental and Multnomah Street Railway Companies the right to make all changes necessary to enable them to operate their systems of roads by cables or electricity should not enable them to set poles and string wires along the center of streets between double tracks as is done in some cities.

WATER AND WIND FOR NOTHING

An ordinance authorizing the committee on parks to contract for a well in the city park not to cost over $750 was read twice and referred to the committee on parks. Councilman Fleidner said it had been concluded that this would be a cheaper plan than to take water from the city mains as if they had a well a pump and a wind mill they could get water and wind for nothing.

STANDING COMMITTEE CHANGES

The changes made in the names and duties of the standing committees made it necessary to reenact a large number of ordinances with amendments inserting the new committees who would have charge of the work involved and so a long dreary time was spent while the ordinance providing for the time and manner of letting contracts etc, and the ordinances providing for the construction of Johnson creek sewer and the extension of the Tanner creek sewer and a lot of other sewers, with all their dry details were read a first second and third time and passed.

USUAL ROUTINE BUSINESS.

From G W Yocum and others asking for a sewer on Eighth street from Clifton to Harrison street, referred to committee on sewers

[This remonstrance settles the matter as it will now require the signatures of a majority of the citizens to procure the vacation of the street.]

REPORTS

THE STAGE

Mattie Vickers at the New Park—Octoroon at the Musee—Marietta Nash Coming.

Mattie Vickers, the charming soubrette, certainly can not complain of a lack of [illegible] if one may judge by the enthusiasm which prevailed at the New Park last evening, on the occasion of her first appearance before a Portland audience. She seemed to jump at [illegible] with the audience and held it [illegible]

Her play "Jacquine" has been [illegible] as a satire upon life behind the [illegible] It is a clever piece of work and [illegible] appropriate vehicle [illegible] tics in which Miss Vickers has been so [illegible] lauded.

She presents a very [illegible] as in the role of Jacquine [illegible] and face aglow with health [illegible] her appearance in [illegible] er's home and the [illegible] charming [illegible] full of intelligence [illegible] an artistic finish [illegible] it thoroughly [illegible] amused at her [illegible] and her comical [illegible] and her clever graceful dancing [illegible] ited encore

In the second act [illegible] dialect character [illegible] "Katie on the Ferry" [illegible] wish to see. The [illegible] laughter over her [illegible] macular. The ent[illegible] over with amusing [illegible] most enjoyable of [illegible] Vickers and Mr R[illegible] songs and dances [illegible]

Mr Harry W R[illegible] pression as a com[illegible] His character work [illegible] and dancing [illegible] uproarious applause

Taylor Carroll as [illegible] as Phineas Flam [illegible] Rosalind Banks were all clever [illegible] ive parts

For those who want to see clever [illegible] "Jacquine" will [illegible] will be operated to-night.

CORDRAY'S MUSEE AND THEATER [illegible] room that familiar picture of southern [illegible] ante bellum days [illegible] amusement for the first time last night, and the performance was a creditable one for all concerned.

Miss Essie Tittel, in the character of Zoe, gave a most earnest and conscientious portraiture of the unfortunate heroine, and managed her emotional scenes with intelligence and dramatic fidelity

Mr George E Caine made a sufficiently blood thirsty Jacob McCloske and the Salem Scudder of George Y Stevens Wahnotee of W M Rousseau old Pete of Sam Morris and little Paul of Miss Minnie Tittel were all well done

The house was large and enthusiastic and the play was evidently enjoyed. The Octoroon will run the remainder of the week.

OUR STRATEGISTS —On Thursday night next Miss Marietta Nash and Harry B Bell will produce the funniest of comedies for the opening of their three nights engagement. It will be remembered as having delighted audiences everywhere in the last few years and nowhere more than in Portland some four years ago. Following this play Miss Nash's new success "Katti" will be given of which the Boston Journal says

"The preliminary season of the Boston Museum opened last evening with the performance for the first time in America of the farcical dramatic comedy by Charles I Nase, who appeared in the title role giving a piece of clever originality as a German maid of all work, in which she contrived to infuse novelty and life into a character that might easily have lapsed into conventionality. The delineation of the quaint Teutonic maid in manifest unconsciousness of mirth provoking scenes of which she was the center possessed a peculiar fascination and her clever dancing with massive wooden shoes elicited hearty applause

THE 'CONSPIRACY' STORY A FAKE

What a Chinaman Has to Say Regarding the Efforts Put Forth to Save Chee Gong's Neck

It is generally known that strong efforts are being made both by the friends of Chee Gong and his attorneys to save the thrice convicted murderer's neck from the gallows. A petition is being widely circulated asking the governor to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment on the representation that he [illegible] was convicted on Chinese testimony and that he was the victim of a conspiracy

The statements of a Christian Chinaman published in yesterday's Telegram [illegible] Chee Gong's innocence [illegible] show the efforts put forth to [illegible] sympathy

Another Chinaman who is [illegible] a Christian but perhaps equally as truthful [illegible] this conspiracy story [illegible] article [illegible] of Chee Gong's friends [illegible] sentiment favorable to commutation [illegible] onors sentence [illegible] theory [illegible] exploded [illegible] That Chee Gong had no money or friends is also [illegible] Through out his trials he has had thirteen different attorneys some of whom stand in the front ranks of the legal profession in the city. Over $3000 has been spent by the defense [illegible] the murdered man who had no friends [illegible] Chinaman whether friend or foe [illegible] testify. While it is true [illegible] principally on [illegible] corroborating circumstances [illegible] to cause two convictions by [illegible] juries. He has been sentenced [illegible]

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

Action Taken for the Relief of Ellensburg, W. T., and Hailey, I. T.

A Committee of Fifteen Will Be Appointed to Canvass the City—Portland Will Entertain Two Excursions—Routine Business.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade was held in their rooms yesterday evening. President Donald Macleay called the meeting to order promptly at 8 o'clock

First in the order of business after the adoption of the minutes of the last meeting, was the reading of communications

ASKING FOR A DELEGATE

J L Terry of Minneapolis wrote the board asking that a delegate be appointed to represent the Portland Board of Trade in the national convention of the representatives of commercial bodies to formulate an equitable and uniform bankruptcy law to be held at that place some time in August

As there would be some expenses to bear in sending the delegate, and the advantages of a bankruptcy law would not cut much of a figure on the coast Mr Thompson did not think it advisable to comply with the invitation

Mr Kapus on the other hand favored it, believing that the advantages would be both material and direct

On motion it was decided to appoint a delegate from St Paul to represent the board in the convention and the chair selected [illegible] H Kelly one of the largest wholesale grocers in the saintly city

CALLS FOR AID

Secretary Arnold then read calls for aid from Ellensburgh W T and Hailey Idaho. It was the unanimous opinion of all present that immediate steps should be taken to render such assistance as the generous hearted citizens can contribute

There is only one way of doing that said Mr Dodd and that is by appointing a committee to solicit subscriptions. There is no cash in our treasury and there is not likely to be any for some time therefore I think that the best and only thing we can do is to appoint a committee to canvass the city as we have done in the cases of Johnstown and Seattle

The matter was put to a vote and carried without a dissenting vote

President Macleay stated that he would be glad to assist in the work and do his share. He will appoint the committee of fifteen this morning

ENTERTAINING EXCURSIONISTS.

The matter was next brought up of making preparations for entertaining two excursions that are to pass through the city during the month

The Nebraska Press Association leaves Omaha July 6 on a special train and the excursion will arrive in Portland on the [illegible]th. There will be about sixty newspaper men accompanied by their ladies in the excursion and they will remain in Portland a week or ten days

The excursion of the [illegible] and Improvement Association [illegible] Cat[illegible] on the [illegible] From Minneapolis the excursion goes via the Northern Pacific to the Yellowstone park, Spokane Falls, Walla Walla and then up the Columbia to Portland, on their way to Tacoma and Seattle

Mr Hughes [illegible] as the [illegible] curs [illegible] capitalists [illegible] business [illegible] tion should [illegible] the excursion of Nebraska [illegible] drivers. Other [illegible] fact that [illegible] mighty dollar were in favor of entertaining both excursions with the respect that is due them

On motion of Mr Dodd with an amendment by Mr Oliphant a committee of five will be appointed to elicit subscriptions and make such arrangements for entertaining the excursions as the funds at the disposal will permit. The committee are empowered to take any action they may see fit

ELECTED TO MEMBERSHIP

On [illegible] the secretary was instructed to cast the vote of the board for the election of [illegible] Ortalda [illegible] membership

As the weather grows warm, the sale of James Pyle's Pearline Washing Compound rapidly increases. This proves that many women recognize the fact that PEARLINE makes washing and cleaning very much easier than when done with the ordinary means. Proves also that summer clothing being of delicate texture and color will not stand the rough usage necessary when washed with soap and establishes the fact that PEARLINE in doing away with the rubbing, lessens the wear and tear and fills a very important place. Delightful for bathing in [illegible] Its ingredients render it harmless to the most delicate skin. Especially during the hot weather it is to your advantage to use PEARLINE and only humane to [illegible] and thus lighten their labors. [illegible] better results. Beware of imitations.
